

Russia Urges Missile Talks

Readiness to Exchange Opinions Is Claimed by Foreign Minister

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko declared today that the Soviet government is "ready to exchange opinions on the curtailment of rocket systems—both offensive and defensive."

Addressing the Soviet Parliament, Gromyko did not elaborate on Soviet willingness to talk. But he apparently was referring to talks on nuclear missiles which the United States has been trying for 17 months to get started.

At the White House, press secretary George Christian declined to answer questions on the U.S. attitude beyond a one-sentence comment:

"We welcome the indication that the Soviet Union is prepared to discuss the limitation of offensive and defense weapons systems."

The foreign minister repeated long-standing Soviet calls for general and complete disarmament—which has proved impossible to reach agreement on between East and West. He also called for an international convention to prohibit use of nuclear weapons—regarded by the West as impractical because of Soviet unwillingness to accept inspection safeguards.

U.S. Attempts

Because of this deadlock, the United States has been pressing the Soviet Union since January 1967 to hold talks on limiting intercontinental Ballistic Missiles (ICBMs) and antiballistic missile (ABM) defenses.

Speaking to the United Nations on June 13, when it approved the nuclear nonproliferation treaty, President Johnson called on the United States and the Soviet Union to "lose no time in finding the way to scale down the nuclear arms race."

"We desire—yes, we urgently desire—to begin early discussions on the limitation of strategic offensive and defensive nuclear weapons systems," Johnson said.

Gromyko said that there was reason to believe American-Soviet relations can be improved, but "the United States must stop trying to turn the world inside out."

Avoid Collision

Referring to Johnson's Glassboro speech June 4, Gromyko said: "We see no reason for a collision as long as the United States respects our security and the security of other peoples."

In a 90-minute survey of Soviet foreign policy, Gromyko said "Soviet-U.S. relations are, as before, burdened by American foreign policy, especially Vietnam."

"It depends upon the government of the United States to what extent the possibilities of Soviet-U.S. relations will be put to use," the foreign minister declared.

Referring to Soviet-Chinese relations, Gromyko said: "We have done all to prevent a deterioration of relations between our two countries. But Peking is deaf to any initiative concerning the future of our relations."

Gromyko condemned Red Chinese propaganda and said it was "on a par with imperialist propaganda."

Gromyko referred to rocket systems talks in the context of disarmament.

"One of the untouched problems in this field is the mutual limitation and later reduction of strategic weapons, both offensive and defensive, including antimissiles. The Soviet Union is ready for an exchange of opinions on this question."

'Far Less Rocky'

Johnson's Glassboro speech was an appeal for better Soviet-American relations. The road to peace, he said, "is far less rocky when the world's two greatest powers—the United States and the Soviet Union—are willing to travel part way together."

Initial Soviet reaction to this and other recent Johnson speeches on the subject had been chilly. Official Soviet commentators listed such obstacles to better relations as the Vietnam war, the Middle East situation and what is termed here "ideological subversion" by Western critics.

Republicans Start Drive to Prevent Elevation of Fortas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighteen Senate Republicans have signed a petition opposing President Johnson's appointment of the Supreme Court justice to the force they must block confirmation, but enough to make rough going if a filibuster develops.

Signers of the petition so far represent half the Senate's 36 GOP members. More could sign.

If Southern Democrats, loudly critical of the court's liberal rulings, should join the opposition,

LBJ Enters Bill to Drop Voting Age

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson sent to Congress today a proposed amendment to the Constitution to give 18-year-olds the right to vote, as "a national affirmation of our faith in America's young people."

The President noted that young Americans are called upon to bear arms and to shoulder family and civic responsibilities with their elders. Now they deserve equally the right to vote, he said.

"Reason does not permit us to ignore any longer the reality that 18-year-old young Americans are prepared by education, by experience of their own to public affairs of the world—to exercise the privilege to vote," the President said in a special message to Congress.

The constitutional amendment he proposed would require approval by two-thirds of the members of the House and Senate and would then have to be ratified by three-fourths of the states—38 states—to become effective.

Hanoi Admits It Has Troops In S. Vietnam

HONG KONG (AP) — A North Vietnamese army communiqué declared today that "the peoples and armies of our country are fighting shoulder to shoulder" to defeat the Americans in Vietnam.

A Radio Hanoi broadcast monitored here said the statement came from the staff headquarters of the Peoples Army of North Vietnam.

This apparently was Hanoi's first public admission that its troops are fighting in South Vietnam. U.S. envoys in the Paris peace talks have been seeking such an acknowledgment as one means of making progress toward a de-escalation of the war.

"For the common destiny of our whole people, for the independence and freedom of our whole nation," the statement said, "the peoples and the armies of our whole country will continue fighting shoulder to shoulder to firmly inflict ever heavier blows and ultimate defeat upon the U.S. aggressors."

confirmation of Abe Fortas as chief justice and Homer Thornberry as an associate justice, could be in jeopardy.

President Johnson Wednesday named Fortas to succeed the retiring Earl Warren and Thornberry to the vacancy created by Fortas' elevation. Fortas, fourth Jew ever to serve on the court, would be the first to lead it.

The President told a news conference he believes the Senate will confirm both and that he tested the political winds in talks with Democratic and Republican leaders, as well as key committee chairmen, before making the decision.

The GOP petition, circulated by Michigan's Robert P. Griffin and California's George Murphy, takes a stand against letting a "lame duck" president fill court vacancies.

Both Griffin and Murphy said it had no bearing on the personalities of Johnson's appointees.

In fact the petition was drawn up before Johnson made public his appointment with the object of opposing Johnson's move to name anyone to the court.

Notably missing from the list of signers was Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

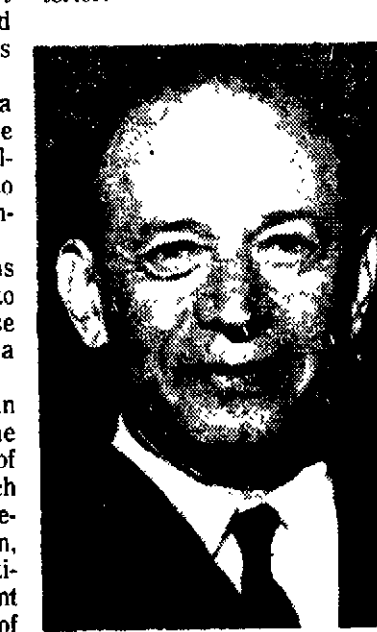

The GOP leader, also top Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee which will consider the appointments, said both Fortas and Thornberry are able men and he has "no personal reservations" about their appointments.

Sen. Howard Baker Jr., however, the Tennessee Republican who is Dirksen's son-in-law and a signer of the petition, said "the mood of Congress and the country is in disagreement with the views of the Supreme Court on many issues."

"In this light," he added, "it is important that a new administration and the American people not be deprived of the right to fill these positions."

James Ray Testifies He Didn't Shoot King

There's a Lot of Work to closing down an air base, Marines are finding as they start pulling out of Khe Sanh, scene of a 77-day siege last winter. Khe Sanh Being Abandoned As Strategy Move by U.S.

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troops were not made until today for security reasons.

Because of the importance U.S. officers publicly put on Khe Sanh while it was under siege for 77 days last winter, its abandonment is a propaganda setback for the United States. But veteran observers of the war don't think the American military position is reduced significantly.

The allies poured 5,500 Marines and 500 South Vietnamese troops into Khe Sanh's bunkers. Before the North Vietnamese pulled back and a 20,000-man relief force lifted the siege on April 6, more than 300 Americans were killed and more than 2,000 wounded. The U.S. Command said 2,605 North Vietnamese soldiers also were killed.

Informed Vietnamese military sources said South Vietnam's generals advised Gen. William C. Westmoreland last winter that Khe Sanh—located in the northwest corner of South Vietnam—was not worth holding or fighting for. These sources said the base was isolated, with no water, no food, and no way to get supplies. Westmoreland, who then was commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, ignored the advice because it contradicted his own strategy and because of the pressure of public opinion in the United States.

General Approved. Side said Westmoreland had approved the plan to abandon Khe Sanh before he relinquished command of U.S. forces in South Vietnam to become Army chief of staff.

The headquarters of Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, who succeeded Westmoreland less than three weeks ago, said in a statement today that both the allied and enemy strength in the northernmost provinces has increased, the enemy has changed his tactics, and U.S. and South Vietnamese forces "must be used to the utmost to attack, intercept, reinforce or take whatever action is most appropriate to meet the enemy threats."

"Therefore, we have decided to continue the mobile posture we adopted in western Quang Tri Province with Operation Pegasus (which relieved Khe Sanh) in April. This decision makes the operation of the base at Khe Sanh unnecessary," the statement said.

The statement added that the enemy now has the equivalent of eight divisions in the five northern provinces, an increase of two since January, and "this gives him the capability of mounting several sizeable attacks concurrently."

"To meet this significantly increased threat, friendly forces must make maximum advantage of their superior firepower and mobility," the U.S. Command said.

A senior U.S. officer gave this explanation of the change in enemy tactics: "They don't have the pressure on Khe Sanh that they did at one time. Now they seem to be holding back, going for harassment and interdiction. There is not a great deal of contact. Whether they're building up or exactly what, it's difficult to say."

The Khe Sanh base, seven miles from the Laotian border, originally was established as a Special Forces camp to monitor North Vietnamese infiltration.

Reinforcements Sent

Because of increasing enemy pressure, the U.S. Marines were sent to reinforce Khe Sanh in 1967. But the Marines were unable to check or effectively monitor the enemy traffic past the base.

The first hint in January of Gen. Westmoreland predicted that surrounded the base and cause it contradicted his own strategy and because of the pressure of public opinion in the United States.

Takes Stand In Opposing Extradition

LONDON (AP) — James Earl Ray, fighting extradition to the United States to stand trial for the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., asserted today he did not kill the Negro civil rights leader.

The prisoner—who is charged here under the alias of Raymond George Sneyd—took to witness stand in a surprise move and testified: "I have never met Dr. King. I have never had any kind of grudge against him."

An FBI expert, George Jacob Bonebrake, had testified that Ray's fingerprints were found on a rifle and binoculars discarded in a shop doorway after King was killed at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tenn., April 4.

"I found one (print) on the rifle and one on the sight and also on the binoculars," Bonebrake said. "I compared them for fingerprints of James Earl Ray in the Los Angeles police file. I found that they belonged to one and the same individual."

Ray's lawyer indicated he would seek to save Ray from extradition by contending that the assassination of King was a political crime.

Extradition Treaty. Under the U.S.-British extradition treaty, political grounds are a principal reason for granting asylum to anyone and barring extradition.

A hearing in historic Bow Street court was held under security precautions unprecedented in British judicial history. It took a dramatic turn after a lawyer representing the U.S. government gave evidence that Ray's fingerprints were found on the rifle suspected of killing King.

Ray was in the murky courtroom under heavy guard and heard a Scotland Yard detective testify that shortly after he was caught he collapsed in his cell moaning: "My God I feel so trapped."

Political Involvement. The extent of King's involvement in American politics was raised by a British lawyer defending Ray.

Attorney Roger Frisby closely questioned an American witness in an effort to get statements about King's political involvement into the court record.

At one point Bonebrake admitted under questioning that there had been a certain amount of dislike for King in the United States.

Bonebrake said he found from the print on the rifle 14 characteristics the same as on prints on file for Ray, a fugitive from the Missouri State Penitentiary.

Wallace Orders Aide to Seize Damaging Film

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC news film that had just been shot of him at a fund-raising dinner in Eutaw, Ala.

"The film was taken by force by a Wallace bodyguard while Secret Service men assigned to guard the candidate and state police looked on."

"Wallace did this because he didn't like the fact that we had filmed him shaking hands with Robert Shelton, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan."

The network said on a radio broadcast that the film was forcibly removed from one of its cameras Wednesday night at a fund-raising dinner in Eutaw, Ala.

The network said the Wallace bodyguard, who refused to identify himself, first asked the camera crew to give up the film. When the crew refused, ABC said, the third-party presidential candidate told the bodyguard, "Take it."

Removes Film. The bodyguard pulled the camera from the shoulder of cameraman Charlie Jones and removed the exposed film, the network said in a news report from Eutaw by Sam Donaldson.

Wallace was not reached immediately for comment. Donaldson's report: "American independent party presidential candidate George Wallace ordered his personal bodyguards to seize and destroy

Liberal Fortas Almost Was a Musician

By BEVERLY R. YOUNG
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — If the Senate goes along with President Johnson's nomination, Abe Fortas will be known by the dignified title of Mr. Chief Justice. But when he was a young man working his way through school by playing the violin at dances his friend called him "Fiddlin' Abe."

Young Fortas led his own band, The Blue Melody Boys, while attending Memphis' South Side High School and Southwestern College. He got $8 a job, a large sum for the son of a Jewish immigrant who worked variously as a jeweler, furniture dealer and cabinet maker.

Johnson Wednesday named Fortas to be chief justice in place of retiring Earl Warren. Fortas was born in Memphis June 19, 1910, the youngest of five children of Woolfe and Rachel Berzansky Fortas, who had come to the United States from Southampton, England.

Young Abe was an excellent student. His late brother, Meyer, reminiscing several years ago, recalled his capacity for concentration.

Decided on Law. "He studied on the radio and sit close to it. He seemed to concentrate better that way. I couldn't have studied with all that sound. It was fascinating to see."

It was at Southwestern, a small Presbyterian college which he attended on a scholarship, that Fortas decided to pursue law as a career instead of music.

After graduation, he was offered law scholarships to Harvard and Yale. He chose Yale because it paid $50 a month more.

He completed law school in 1933 and remained on at Yale as an assistant professor of law. But Fortas spent much of his time commuting between Yale and Washington, D.C., where he got his political indoctrination as assistant chief of the legal division of the Agricultural Administration. After a year in that job, he switched to the Securities and Exchange Commission as a legal adviser.

He left Yale in 1937 to devote full time to his Washington career and by 1942 had become undersecretary of Interior.

Jambalaya of Styles Shown At Summer Furniture Markets

BY CAROL HANSON

Post-Crescent Home Furnishings Editor

The furniture menu introduced at the recent summer markets in Chicago offered many diverse styles. Although Spanish-Mediterranean was the predominant offering, contemporary transitional treatments, formal French, avant-garde, old English and American Colonial were very much in evidence.

The eclectic world of home furnishings revolves tastefully from modern with sinuous new twists and turns to a refreshingly romantic look that is old world in inspiration but completely "now" in interpretation.

Materials in New Roles

A striking use of old and new materials is playing an important role in the ever-widening range of furniture styles. Included in the new treatments are such things as smoked and bronzed glass, caning, bamboo trim, see-through tables and even chairs of Plexiglas or glass. There are notably more man-made finishes for wood and fabric and more use of carved paneling, all-plastic furniture and vinyl wrapped pieces.

All of these treatments, and more, are focusing attention on finishing touches and detail and on the refinements that make the difference between excellence and mediocrity. This perfectionist treatment used with some of the new accessory mixers brings a concerted zest and elegance to the furniture scene this season.

The strongest showing in Mediterranean styling seems to be Spanish. However, design inspiration has been borrowed from Mexico, Peru and even the pre-Colombian culture. Designers have made much use of dark, distressed woods, spindled backs and sides of sofas, chairs and ottomans with soft-edge wellness upholstery.

Also featured are copper nail heads for trim, leather straps that encircle cushions of suede or velvet and detailed embellishment and carving of wooden frames. These are a few of the touches that characterize this type of furniture.

Mediterranean is both sophisticated and casual with a touch of country crudeness to mix with other styles or to serve independently as individual highlights. It bears a strong resemblance to English furniture of Tudor and Jacobean derivation and is compatible with these as well as Early American. It is also at home in a contemporary or transitional milieu.

Featured fabrics are apt to be solid-toned velvets, leathers, vinyls, suedes and deep contrasting colors in woven designs. Also rich, lively paisleys, deep tones in tight floral patterns, damask in a contemporary casual treatment and traditional motifs that have taken on a thoroughly modern excitement.

A noticeable dent in the Mediterranean-transitional contemporary front is being made by formal French which is more cosmopolitan than its country cousin. French Provincial. This "high" French twist shows up in Louis XV and Louis XVI bergeres, sofas, chairs, serpentine and bombe chests and consoles, in fruit-wood finishes as well as antique painted.

It is emphasized in silks and velvets, in strong color state-ments such as vibrant pastel upholstery fabrics that are contemporary in treatment but designers have used neutrals to meld harmoniously with the elegance of this sophisticated French styling.

This type of furniture blends black and white shown, too, well with the mixers such as square or hexagonal glass topped see-through tables with polished pewter legs and stretchers, ginger-jar lamp bases with pleated shades. Touches of increasingly important Oriental such as screens, porcelains, tapestries and rugs.

Another kind of furniture look is the very avant-garde that is sweeping in from many parts of Europe as well as this country. This may take a sinuous, serpentine and wavy form, molded and covered in riotously patterned fabrics rather psychedelic in treatment.

Ahead of these exaggerated creations are the see-through plastic pillows, chairs and even sofas that are inflated with air and come equipped sometimes with their own repair kits in case of leaks.

The market pointed up the fact that there is much liveable, likeable, furniture available. The tag may read anything from avant-garde to formal French, but there seems to be a style or combination of styles to please just about everybody.

If strong color is your cup of tea, there is a rainbow of it available. If you prefer a quiet setting for your home, designers have used neutrals to strengthen or lively shades of the old familiar. There was a lot of black and white shown, too, accompanied with a smart con-square or hexagonal glass top-

American Designer Showings Highlight New Fashion Trends

BY JACKIE KRUG

Post-Crescent Fashion Editor

NEW YORK — Kimberly Knits led off the first full day of the American Designer Series Monday in the Grand Ballroom of Delmonico's Hotel with the group's usual good taste in fashion.

New look at Kimberly for fall is swifty. Shirts follow the trend of the other houses to be wider with pleats, gores and fuller A-lines. One straight skirt, included in the collection, appeared just a bit out of date. One great dress was cut with panelled side pleats falling from bodice seaming.

Although Kimberly is not established as a trend-maker, there were several new things of note. One was a small squared neckline, barely bigger than a jewel neck.

Texturing beyond the knit was almost absent but did appear in a vertically textured dress that gave it the appearance of pinstripes without using two colors.

Tortoise trim on belts and in buttons was used extensively, and was a great look with the more muted colors.

A new shoulder cut is called the epaulet shoulder by the Kimberly people. Although the real epaulet is missing, a piece is cut into the top of the shoulder to present the effect without being definite military. It has the advantage of not being outdated in a few months.

Also showing Monday morning, was Jacques Tiffreau of Tiffreau and Busch. New in the Tiffreau line was a complete collection of evening gowns. The group was lead off by several heavy brocades in intricate metallic patterns that echo some things seen last week.

Of unusual importance in the Tiffreau evening collection was the unique combination of fabrics. Gimmicks and tricks are out, and fabric tells the story. Tiffreau obviously has found his favorite in combining suede bodices with heavy satin skirts. Unorthodox as it sounds, the costumes are stunning. Skirts are cut slightly full at the waist to gather onto the halter type tops. Backs are exposed in almost every costume and sleeves are absent.

Tiffreau also has branched out into a boutique hat collection and is showing his gowns with hats for evening. The hats were all very costume and no doubt are making a statement for the designer. Just what the statement is, is unclear.

Tiffreau's favored hat is a take-off on the mask with the eye piece being held by a strap over the top of the head and one around the back. From my viewpoint, they look too much like a put on to be taken seriously.

Tiffreau also likes the combination of guinea hen and ostrich feathers that have been shown in other collections. He used them to border hoods and cuffs on his evening coats.

In daytime coats, the designer showed nothing but the mid-length — to keep us warm the editors were told. That's fine, but I still have to be convinced that they're easy to move in.

Hortonville Woman Attends Veterinary Auxiliary Meeting

HORTONVILLE — Mrs. Keith Breyer, treasurer of the Wisconsin Veterinary Medical Association, (WVMA) attended the annual summer meeting of the Auxiliary to the WVMA at the Pioneer Inn, Oshkosh. The June 20 event was presided over by Mrs. A. A. Jarvis, Withee, state president.

thing over the country — especially, not soon.

But there are serious questions posed by the new look for men.

Designers Present New Look for Men

NEW YORK — A few months ago, a designer of men's fashion opened a rather unusual kettle of fish — he showed handbags for men. What hopefully was a flash in a frying pan, appears to be turning out to be more than that during fashion press weeks here.

The strongest point for men's handbags was made during American Leather Industries showings in conjunction with the New York Couture Group Saturday evening. The bags, mostly in darker and rougher leathers, are designed with long shoulder straps and a lot of hardware. For the most part, they are carried on the shoulder in camera bag style.

Custom Reversal

The whole thing raises a lot of questions. They are practical. Men often do find their pockets full of all sorts of odds and ends that could be conveniently carried in a bag. With the newer, more fitted suits, bunches of pocket gear spoil the silhouette.

I think the fate of the idea may lie with the women. One thing's certain — it's going to take some getting used to. Women's bags are growing larger, and it might be a wise idea to reverse the custom of filling the gentleman's pockets with the woman's things and allow our men to fill our pockets.

Some of the scarves are worn bandana style and aren't bad, but there are others that are a bit much.

Obviously, because of expense, the fads and fancies of these New York menswear designers are not going to be the had his suit lapel turned up by the wind.

Lapels are far from gone; in fact, they are bigger than ever. The influence of the Thirties that we have seen in women's fashion is translated to menswear for fall. The swing was most obvious in a charming tuxedo with wide, wide lapels on a close cut jacket and shown with a wider bow tie and simple shirt.

According to Bill Blass, THE look in men's at home wear for fall is done in strawberry velvet. He showed pants with a contrasting plaid Nehru shirt and an all velvet costume.

Leather, Plaids, Scarves

Bright plaids pants also are making the scene for day wear. Larger and brighter plaids appear in everything for men — especially favored for suits is the larger window pane plaid in browns and beiges.

Leather is nearly everywhere in fashion this year. Not a designer yet has left it out of a collection — not even the menswear people. Included in the Sunday night showings was a four-piece outfit of leather pants and jacket over leather shorts and a laced vest topped by a scarf worn around the neck.

Scarves and ascots are two more ideas that seem to be vying for the place of the tie. Some of the scarves are worn bandana style and aren't bad, but there are others that are a bit much.

Obviously, because of expense, the fads and fancies of these New York menswear designers are not going to be the Neat, quiet and nice. That was the way Oakland's Chuck Dobson put away the California Angels 3-0 on a three-hit Wednesday night.

No fussing. No feuding. Just a professional, clean-cut job.

Listening to Bill Rigney, manager of the Angels, talk the night before, you'd have expected the two teams at each other's throats. It never happened.

"My players are sore at someone," Rigney had said after three batters were hit by pitches and another spiked in California's 7-6 victory Tuesday night. "I wouldn't miss Wednesday night's game for anything in the world."

In other AL action Wednesday, Baltimore rapped Boston 6-2 and Washington whacked Cleveland 8-2. Detroit's game at New York was rained out.

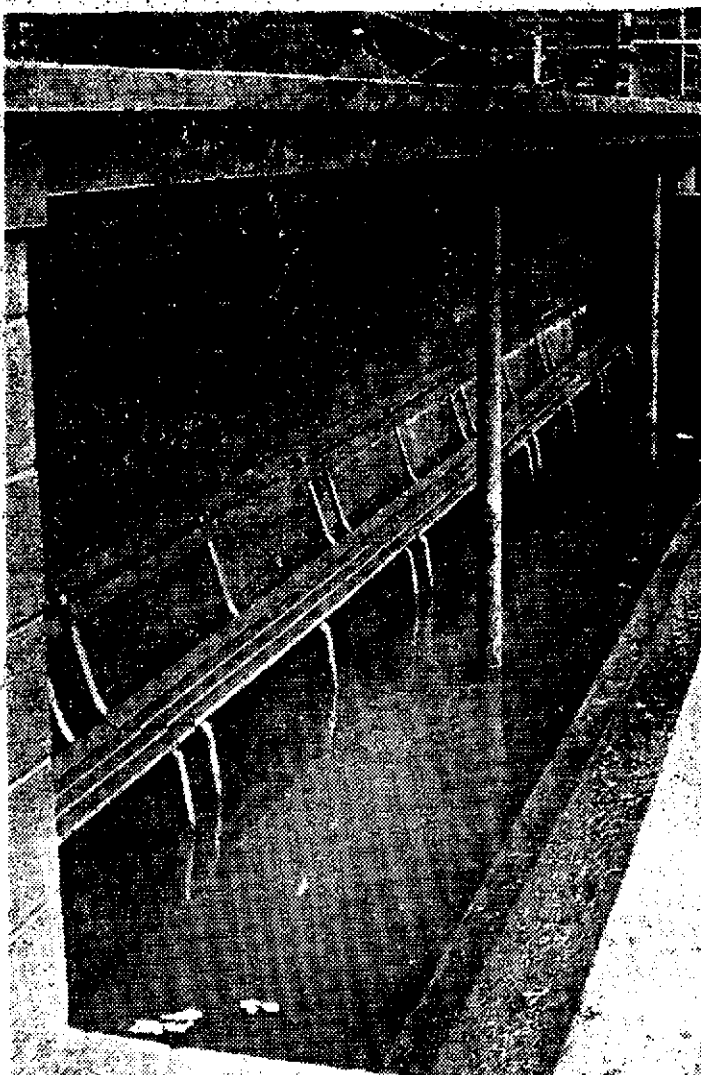

Dobson, staked to a quick 2-0 lead, was in command from the start and didn't allow an Angel past first base after the first inning. Jim Fregosi had two of the three singles Dobson, 5-7, allowed.

Mike Hershberger doubled home one run and scored another for the A's in the first and Phil Roof completed the scoring with his first homer of the year in the second.

Baltimore used a familiar theme to beat Boston with Frank Robinson, Brooks Robinson and Boog Powell all smashing home runs. It was the kind of power show that carried the Orioles to the American League pennant in 1966.

Brooks tagged his seventh of the year—a two-run shot in the fourth. Powell hit No. 12 and Frank followed with No. 4 for two more runs in the sixth.

Goodland Field Seemed more appropriate for water polo than for baseball Wednesday until pumps (bottom photo) cleared most of the outfield. Foxes Win Doubleheader, Hope to Play White Sox

Pumps Drain Water From Outfield

At 9:30 a.m. today, it was still uncertain whether one of the Fox Cities' biggest baseball events in history would fall victim to the Appleton version of a monsoon.

Though rain continued to fall this morning, officials were still hopeful that somehow the Appleton Foxes-Chicago White Sox exhibition game could be played at Goodland Field tonight, as scheduled. A decision was to be made early this afternoon.

Travel arrangements had called for the White Sox plane to leave Chicago at 3 p.m. and arrive at the Outagamie Airport at 4 p.m. The game was scheduled for a 6:30 p.m. start.

Ed Short and Glen Miller, general manager and farm director, respectively, of the White Sox were scheduled to be in Appleton around noon to help make a final decision on the game. Short, Miller and players Pete Ward and Luis Aparicio were to appear at the White Sox Boys camp, at Brothertown this morning.

The continuous rainfall of the last few days had all but inundated parts of the Goodland field outfield. Three pumps were used Wednesday afternoon and they drained most of the water. Officials say the infield could be put in playing shape in a few hours after the end of the rain.

Some bleacher seat tickets remained for the game and were to be put on sale at the gate.

The White Sox are scheduled to play a two-night doubleheader in Detroit Friday.

Boys Baseball Clinic Slated Here Saturday

A boys baseball clinic — co-sponsored by the Appleton Recreation Department, the Appleton Foxes and the Chicago White Sox — will be held Saturday morning at Goodland Field. The starting time is 10 a.m.

Boys are being asked to wear their baseball shirts. The awarding of prizes is also planned.

Don's No-Hitter Ruined Gibson Records Fifth Successive Shutout, Nears Drysdale Mark

BY DICK COUCH

Momentum will be in Bob Gibson's corner when the St. Louis Cardinals' ace pitcher Don Drysdale resumes his pursuit of a no-hitter.

Gibson reeled off his fifth straight shutout — one short of the major league record set ear-

Gibson Thinks About Victory Before Shutout

Shrugs Off Talk Of Overcoming Drysdale's Records

By CHARLIE BAROUH

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Gibson likes to keep things in their proper perspective.

Like for instance winning. That comes first.

So while questions about his five consecutive shutouts get out of hand, Gibson keeps everything under control—his last ball, his curve, even his irritation over record-rabid sports writers.

The St. Louis Cardinals' ace pitcher Don Drysdale is scheduled to play a two-night doubleheader in Detroit Friday.

Gibson shrugs off the talk to a win.

about his chances of beating, Gibson contributed a fourth-inning double to the Cards' at-record of six straight shutouts, and scored on Lou Brock's 58 2-3 scoreless innings double. Mike Shannon homered Gibson has 47 consecutive scorelier this month by Los Angeles Drysdale . . . with a four-hit 3-0 triumph over Pittsburgh in the opener of a doubleheader Wednesday night.

But Drysdale, whose shutout string ran out about the same time Gibson started picking up steam, proved he hasn't lost his magic by hurling 7 1/3 hitless innings on the way to his 200th career victory, a two-hit 2-1 nod over San Francisco.

Drysdale, who holds the all-time mark of 58 1/3 consecutive scoreless innings, and Gibson, with a string of 47 blanks intact, are due to oppose each other next Monday night at Los Angeles.

Pirates Rebound

The Pirates rebounded from their loss to Gibson and trimmed the National League leading Cardinals 3-1 in the nightcap. Cincinnati shaded the New York Mets 7-6, Houston nipped the Chicago Cubs 2-1 and Philadelphia slipped past Atlanta 3-2 in 11 innings.

Gibson, who started his string of shutouts with a 4-0 victory over Houston on June 6, two days before Philadelphia ended Drysdale's skein, struck out seven, walked none and continued to shrug off his run at the whitewash record.

"I really don't care about it," he said. "Everybody talks about it, but I'm not looking forward to a shutout. I'm looking forward to a win."

Gibson's streak ends. The Cardinals stopped Maury Wills' 24-game hitting streak in the eighth inning.

"Macht nichts," Gibson said. "It's the second game, but the Pirates rallied behind Matty Alou, thought about a shutout in the who collected three hits and sixth or seventh inning, but of course the first thing you think preserved the victory with a about is getting runs. The shut-clutch relief job in the ninth."

Dave Marshall's pinch single out is secondary.

Jones and Hollrah Gain Triumphs

DECATUR, Ill. — The revamped Appleton Foxes extended their winning streak to four Wednesday night, as they downed Decatur in a pair of games, 4-1 and 5-4, behind the strong pitching of right-handers Rick Jones and Orville Hollrah.

Jones picked up his eighth victory against two losses in hurling the opening tilt. Hollrah got credit for his first triumph in the second contest, despite needing relief help in the seventh inning when the Commodores exploded for all four of their runs.

Although out-hit, 7-6, in the first tilt, the Foxes made their first count. Rich Severson clubbed his second homer in successive games in the fifth frame, accounting for two of the markers.

Appleton scored first in the first game, getting a single run in the third when Jerry Boehmer walked and eventually scored with two outs on Jesus Aristimuño's throwing error.

Wade Homers

Decatur came back to tie the count at 1-1 in the bottom of the inning on Keith Wade's lead-off homer, but the Foxes gained the advantage for good in the fifth when Severson connected off loser Mike Welker with Jones aboard.

The visitors came through with another insurance run in the sixth on Jeff Hansen's double to right that plated Art Jones.

Kunes, meanwhile, scattered the seven hits he allowed. The Commodores, only threat of a Turn to Page 3, Col. 1

Not Worried About No-Hitter

By RON RAPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Don Drysdale, who had just come within four outs of a no-hitter, figures he may never get any closer. He just isn't the type.

The big Los Angeles right-hander set down San Francisco on two hits Wednesday, winning his 200th career game as the Dodgers beat the Giants 2-1.

Not until there were two out in the eighth did pinch hitter Dave Marshall deliver the first San Francisco hit, a solid run-scoring single to center.

Upset? Not Don.

"I wasn't worried about a no-hitter," Drysdale said. "With two out, I was just hoping to keep the first guy off base in the ninth so the next guy wouldn't hit one out."

"I'm not really the type of pitcher that pitches no-hitters. I pitch them in and out and try to get guys to hit the ball."

"No-hit pitchers are usually guys who pitch up and down."

Chisox Call Hopkins From Evansville

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox called up Wednesday the Southern League's leading hitter, Gail Hopkins, a catcher and first baseman who is hitting .372 for Evansville.

To make room for Hopkins, the White Sox are returning left-handed pitcher Danny Lazar to Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League.

Hopkins, a native of Los Angeles, is 25 years old, stands 5-10 and weighs 205 pounds. He attended Pepperdine College in Los Angeles and was signed by the White Sox in 1965.

who are a little wild sometime and then everything falls in."

Drysdale had limited the Giants to just two walks when Jack Hiatt walked, leading off the eighth. Bobby Bonds then bunted and was safe when Drysdale's throw pulled Wes Parker off first.

New Record Rainfall

High Water Hits All of Fox River Valley Area

BY DICK JACOBSON

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Rainfall records in the Fox Cities have been shattered, and it may be the fault of Hurricane Candy.

Wednesday's rainfall of 3.92 inches was the most ever recorded in one day since the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. began operating its weather station in 1927.

The amount of rain which fell when the prolonged wet spell began late Tuesday night, through mid-morning today was 4.25 inches.

A new precipitation mark was set today for the month of June. So far this month, 8.84 inches of rain have fallen, breaking the old record of 8.42 inches which was established in 1944.

John Kurtyka, Wisconsin Michigan's weather observer said this morning, "It's a good possibility that we're being hit with the after-effects of Candy who is bringing all this moist air up from the Gulf of Mexico. Unofficial Record

Kurtyka also noted that The Post-Crescent carried a story on June 12, 1922, reporting that 9 inches of rain fell in Appleton during a 24-hour period the previous day. "This was before our station was established and the rain amount is an unofficial record," Kurtyka said.

The forecast for tonight and Friday isn't encouraging, although it is hoped that the sun will peak through the clouds by the weekend.

Up One Foot

Ross Plainse, of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Appleton, said the water levels on the Wolf and Fox Rivers have gone up one foot since Wednesday.

He reported that the water is three feet higher than it should be at Little Kaukauna dam near Little Rapids.

Plainse said that all six sluice gates on the Fox at Appleton are open today in an attempt to control the rising waters.

"More gates were opened at the Neenah dam to try to keep Lake Winnebago to its present level of 19 inches," said Plainse.

He indicated that the top level of the lake is 21 1/2 inches and if it goes any higher, "we're in trouble."

Trouble Spot
"The Little Kaukauna dam is a trouble spot because of extreme water runoff from Apple Creek and Plum Creek," Plainse said.

"We're holding our own," the engineer said. However, when asked what could result if the rain continued through this week he said, "I don't even want to think about it; we'll be in trouble," Plainse observed.

It also was reported that the bay of Green Bay backed up, and the Fox River through Green Bay and De Pere was up about three feet resulting in flooding along river banks and downtown Green Bay.

The entire Outagamie County picture hasn't been too bright. Water has been collecting in almost every farm field with a depression.

Crops Hurt
Row crops (cabbage and corn) particularly will be hurt, said Rus Luckow, Outagamie County agriculture agent.

He noted that surface drains in fields are taxed to capacity, and overflowing in many places. Creeks in the Shioer watershed are near high levels frequently witnessed in wet spring or fall seasons.

Luckow said that water is beginning to collect in spots along State 156, west of Nichols, but not as extensive or serious as in spring. Capital Drive at County Trunk A closed Wednesday afternoon. He said that undulating Lake Front Park and excess water normally collects on either side of U.S. 41—County Trunk A intersection and is reaching high spring levels now.

Basements Flooded
Appleton City Engineer Robert Pfefferle said that the majority of basements are flooded in the inner core sections of the city. "Homes weren't affected by the 1962 ordinance requiring sump pumps are experiencing the problem," Pfefferle noted.

The city engineer said that because of the intense rain the sewer system for all practical purposes "is completely saturated."

"Most of the homes with flooded basements have drain tiles connected to the sanitary sewer system, meaning that clear water gets into the sanitary system which is now grossly overloaded," Pfefferle said.

He said that the overload also has resulted in crews from the engineering department street cleaning following a one-car crash at the intersection of County Trunks Q and QQ in the Town of Farmington.

Raymond W. Konatz, 38, route 1, New London, was arrested for failing to report an accident which occurred about 11:30 p.m. June 13 on County Trunk EE in the Town of Lind.

Nature Gets Ahead

"We can't separate when the drain tile gets into the sanitary sewer," the engineer said.

"We would like the general public to know that we're mobilizing all forces available to combat this problem, but nature has got a little bit ahead of us," Pfefferle said.

The Appleton Police Department Wednesday and today received numerous complaints of flooded basements. The Outagamie County Sheriff's Department reported that a power wire was down early today at Bluemound Drive and U.S. 10.

No Power

The entire north end of the City of Marion and Town of Caroline were without power for several hours Wednesday.

It was reported that the high winds knocked down a 12-volt line resulting in the outage at 11:14 a.m.

Other downed lines affected the towns of Embarrass, Clover Leaf Lake, Tilleda, and the northern part of Polar. White Lake, Langlade, and Elton, the Wisconsin Power and Light Company reported.

All golf courses in the Fox Cities area are soaked. However, Reid Municipal Golf Course today reports that despite the rains they have been receiving calls from golfing enthusiasts who still want to "tour the course."

Greenskeepers reported that the courses are not playable.

Menasha Failure

The Menasha Water and Light Commission reported a power failure in downtown Menasha at 2:30 p.m. The failure, which lasted about 10 minutes, was caused by the wind which broke a limb and fell across power lines.

The steady rainfall during the past several days also caused numerous phone calls to the Neenah and Menasha city halls, fire departments and police stations.

The Neenah Fire Department said it pumped out 22 Neenah basements, while the Menasha department report reported two basement floods.

In addition, a Neenah home was evacuated Wednesday since the sidewalk was higher than the house level and storm water poured in. The Neenah Fire Department pumped water out of the house from 11:30 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Spokesmen at the Menasha Locks said 3.5 inches of rain has fallen on the Twin City area since Monday. From 8 a.m. Wednesday to 8 a.m. today, it recorded a total of 2.24 inches.

At the Neenah-Menasha Sewage Treatment Plant, officials estimated more than half of the incoming flow was by-passed into the river.

The sewage system handled effluent, mostly rain water, at a rate of 65 million gallons per day. Only 18 million gallons received secondary treatment, the capacity of the plant, while another 8 million gallons received just primary treatment. The rest was pumped directly into the river and lake system.

Elsewhere in Wisconsin, Janesville had 5.76 inches, less than one inch below the record for the month.

The Chippewa River rose to 11.5 feet in Durand, spilling over into nearby streets and basements. The Pine River overflowed in Richland County, flooding Highway 80 between Richland Center and Hub City.

Highway 131 was closed between La Farge and Ontario in Vernon County after the Kickapoo went over its banks. The St. Croix flooded at Hudson, in-day afternoon. He said that undulating Lake Front Park and excess water normally collects on either side of U.S. 41—County Trunk A intersection and is reaching high spring levels now.

The weather bureau at Du-rue issued a flood warning saying the heavy downpours would cause the Grant, Platte and Pecatonica rivers to overflow.

Green Bay had 2.11 inches of rain in the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

Wycislo Defends the Primacy of Clergy's Spiritual Leadership

The Very Rev. Aloisius J. Wycislo has defended bishops who consider the spiritual sanctification of souls of prime importance.

A story reporting the Green Bay bishop's remarks at a consecration ceremony of two auxiliary bishops in Chicago appeared in today's edition of the National Catholic Reporter, attributed to a Catholic news service.

The bishop specifically responded to criticism leveled at American bishops by Donald Thorman, publisher of the Reporter, an independent liberal Roman Catholic national weekly newspaper.

Thorman had said, "The failure of our bishops as a group, to provide dynamic, loving leadership is the most important single reason for the continuing crisis in the American Church today, and the widespread failure of renewal and reform in American Catholicism."

Bishop's Response

Bishop Wycislo responded, "Now if Mr. Thorman had stated that what we need is to give bishops more cooperation and opportunity for shepherding and lessen their burdens of administering, then American Catholicism could be made more ready for renewal and reform under the leadership of those who devised the principles for renewal and reform at Vatican II."

He added, "Were it not for the critical editorializing and writing of so many so-called Catholic writers, renewal in the American Church would have been much further advanced than it is today."

Bishops Refuse

Such critics hold that "too many bishops refuse to join the crowd who affirm the primacy of social service, and these bishops continue in their obstinacy to persist in the primacy of the spiritual sanctification of souls: something more subtle, less obvious, and certainly less immediately satisfying than the new social theology purports to accomplish," the Green Bay prelate said.

The bishop served 16 years with Catholic Relief Services, eventually becoming its assistant executive director. He spent several years as a director of American Catholic overseas relief activity and was a director of the Chicago archdiocesan Catholic Charities office. Bishop Wycislo spoke on June 14 at a double consecration ceremony for Auxiliary Bishops Alfred L. Abramowicz and Michael R. Dempsey of Chicago, held at Quigley Preparatory Seminary, Chicago.

60 Arrested in Second Night of Violence in Oakland Suburb of the principal KKK organization in the South, United Klans of America.

"Shelton had joined a receiving line apparently without Wallace's knowledge, walked up to the candidate while our TV light was on. Shelton was wearing a Wallace for president button but it should be noted that George Wallace has declared he does not welcome the endorsement of the KKK.

"As soon as he realized what was filmed, Wallace huddled with his closest advisers, pointed us out to his personal bodyguard. One of them grabbed the camera and said, 'We are going to take the film. You can make it easy on yourself and give it to us or we'll take it.'

"When I protested that the film was the property of ABC, we would not give it up, Wallace said, 'Take it.' The bodyguard, who refused to identify himself, pulled the camera from Cameron's shoulder and removed the exposed film."

6-Year-Old Has First Hangover

PORT WASHINGTON (AP)—A Port Washington girl has recovered from her first hangover.

The 6-year-old girl was drinking soda pop in the basement of a friend's home with three other children, when they found a bottle of Scotch whisky and started mixing it with their drinks, police said.

The 6-year-old had considerably more than the others, police said, and the four nearly finished the fifth.

She wobbled home on her bicycle, staggered into the house and collapsed. She was rushed to a hospital where doctors let her sleep it off.

Reinforcements were called from a number of nearby cities, including 50 San Francisco officers with police dogs.

Police said they could not estimate how many people were involved in the disturbance, the extent of injuries nor total damage.

The trouble was regarded by officers as a continuation of a neighborhood disturbance that erupted Tuesday night after a Negro teen-ager was shot and wounded by a reserve policeman in North Richmond, 10 miles north of Oakland.

In the Wednesday night flare-up, one of the largest downtown buildings, the Travelline furniture store, burned to the ground after police said a firebomb apparently had been thrown. All of the other fires were small and easily put out, firemen said.

"We had a little gunfire, but no one was hit," said a police captain.

Reports circulated that the National Guard had been summoned, but in Sacramento, Paul Beck, Gov. Ronald Reagan's aide, said "The Richmond city manager first asked for mobilization, then withdrew the request."

Earlier Wednesday, five students were arrested after a fight broke out among whites and Negroes at a summer school in Richmond, but police said in some instances Negro students defended white friends.

In the disturbance the night before, 12 persons, including six policemen, were injured as rocks were thrown by members of a crowd of some 250 Negroes. The large band gathered after the youth was shot while running from a car police believed was stolen.

Hosiery Now Required When Trying on Shoes

Ray Denies Slaying King

tentary. He found 11 similar characteristics from the prints on the telescopic sight.

Cross-examined by Frisby, the court-appointed lawyer defending Ray, Bonebrake said he took an interest in his country's politics although his work did not bring him in contact with them unless they were connected with fingerprints he was examining.

He agreed that King was a nationally known figure. Asked if he believed the Negro leader inspired liking or dislike in America, he replied: "More toward liking, I would think."

But he agreed there was a certain amount of dislike too.

Bonebrake said he knew of King's movement, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. But he said that, to the best of his recollection, he knew of no commitment to any political party by the conference.

When the court suspended session for a luncheon break, detectives continued to guard all doors of the courthouse. News-men had to show credentials to get in or out and members of the public were searched for weapons.

The U.S. government was represented by a British lawyer, David Calcutt. He told Magistrate Frank Milton that Ray's fingerprints were found on the rifle which police recovered after King was shot in Memphis, Tenn., April 4.

"The bullet which killed Dr. King was examined when recovered," he continued, "and there is a strong likelihood that the bullet came from the rifle found by te police."

Calcutt told the crowded Bow Street Court that King was the victim of "a calculated, brutal and senseless murder—a murder that was bitter with irony."

"Though his name was a very password for peace," Calcutt said, "he met a violent death."

"This tragic death of Dr. King was the working of the single hand of this man," he declared, referring to Ray.

The 40-year-old escaped convict was brought into the court today to hear Calcutt outline the U.S. government's case for his extradition.

With two British lawyers to defend him, Ray was expected to fight extradition and appeal to the High Court if Milton ruled that he should be returned to the United States. This could extend the process for weeks.

It was Ray's third court appearance under the alias of Raymond George Sneyd, the name on the Canadian passport he was carrying when he was arrested June 8 at London airport. His two previous trips to Bow Street for preliminary hearings had been brief, and the proceedings today provided the first extensive look at the U.S. government's case against him.

Poor Plan Economic Boycott To Force Merchant Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Poor People's Campaign leader says a new tactic—economic boycotts in about 40 cities—will begin in downtown Washington next week in an effort to put new pressure on Congress.

The leader, Jesse Jackson, said the aim of the boycott against specific products will be to force businessmen to pressure Congress for appropriations to relieve hunger and malnutrition among the nation's poor.

Jackson did not name the other target cities.

In another new tactic, the campaign asked a federal court injunction Wednesday to force Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman to use $227 million for food for the poor.

Return Money

Freeman said the money is earmarked to support perishable food prices and is to be turned back to the federal Treasury June 30 because he has no authority from Congress to use it for any other purpose.

In other developments:

—The Rev. Andrew Young, a campaign leader, said the homes and offices of all 26 House Agriculture Committee members will be picketed over the food-stamp issue. Although the committee voted Wednesday to increase the food-stamp program's authorized ceiling from $225 million to $245 million, it rejected a four-year extension of the program with no monetary ceiling.

—About 50 demonstrators were permitted in the House gallery after they broke up into small groups and obtained passes from Rep. John Conyers, D-

Engine Troubles, Leak Plague Solo Sailor

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Richard L. Stevenson's nonstop round-the-world ocean voyage was delayed five times by engine trouble. Now it's been temporarily scuttled by a leak.

Stevenson's 29-foot sloop-rigged American Spirit was towed into harbor Wednesday, 100 miles down the coast from his starting point Sunday at Marina Del Rey.

The husky lifeguard said he will resume his 30,000-mile journey as soon as repairs are made.

Mich No demonstrations are permitted on Capitol Hill.

—Reies Tijerina, leader of the campaign's Mexican-American contingent, said he will seek a meeting with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant on the group's land claims in the southwestern United States. He said a caravan will go to New York in about a week.

Mules Impounded

The mules for the campaign's symbolic wagon train were impounded Wednesday by U.S. Park Police who said the animals were not getting proper care.

But the Interior Department said later a Washington woman, Mrs. Marilyn Riviere, had arranged to pay a month's board for the mules at a horse farm in Columbia, Md., and said she would pay to transport the mules to Washington when needed for demonstrations.

Jackson had said before that target products for the boycott now planned to begin in Washington next week would include salmon and grapes.

Support Indians

He said salmon would be boycotted in support of Indian fishing claims in the Pacific Northwest and grapes in support of Mexican-American labor organizing efforts in the West.

The suit against Freeman claims the Agriculture Secretary has discretionary authority to use the $227 million for emergency purposes and that millions of undernourished Americans constitute an emergency.

The suit says failure to use the funds unneeded for perishable food price support to help the needy is "arbitrary, illegal and unconstitutional."

Filing the suit are the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and "various needy persons denied adequate nutrition."

225 Day-Old Detroit Newspaper Strike Ends

DETROIT (AP) — Dr. Nathan Feinsinger and Mayor Jerome Cavanagh praised each other Wednesday for helping to bring about the end to Detroit's newspaper strike, but a key man, in Feinsinger's opinion, was not on hand for the celebration.

Feinsinger praised Cavanagh "for standing behind us when nobody else in the community, so far as I knew, thought that we had a chance to win, which we did," Feinsinger, a University of Wisconsin law professor, was brought in as a special mediator.

But the man of the hour, Feinsinger said, was United Auto Workers Union official Irving Bluestone, an administrative assistant to UAW President Walter Reuther, who acted as a liaison near the end of the talks.

Key Figure

"The moment that he stepped in, I knew we had it made," Feinsinger explained. "He's the fellow we should be paying."

Cavanagh praised Feinsinger for his work in getting four of the six striking unions to recommend to their members that they accept his financial recommendations for ending the strike, 225 days old Thursday. This break came Tuesday night.

Wednesday afternoon, Jim McMahon, president of the American Newspaper Guild in Detroit, said that the guild and two other unions had accepted the economic recommendations.

Cavanagh said he hoped Feinsinger's "efforts and observations in this critical field result in a better format of mature collective bargaining for future labor agreements."

Feinsinger commented "This is an opportunity, for this city at least, to take another look at the collective bargaining practices of this industry. I rather think that we will be able to develop a plan which both the newspaper publishers and all unions will accept."

State Trains Dentists To Aid Handicapped

BY E. H. JORRIS, M.D.
State Health Officer

Dental care for children with mental and certain kinds of physical handicaps has created problems for the parent and the family dentist. It is often difficult for the parent to arrange for treatment without traveling extreme distances. And while the family dentist has the professional skills needed for treatment, he often lacks the knowledge of peculiar problems of handicapped children, especially those emotional conditions encountered in the mentally handicapped.

Recognizing this health problem, the State Dental Society in cooperation with the Dental Health Section of the State Division of Health, Marquette University, and the Milwaukee Children's Hospital joined together in a training project for practicing dentists.

Three Sessions

Three training sessions were held at the Children's Hospital in Milwaukee, attended by 48 practicing dentists and three dental hygienists from all geographical areas of Wisconsin.

The courses were arranged to give the practitioner a better understanding of the dental problems of children afflicted with various physical and mental handicapping conditions.

Medical specialists who work with handicapped children explained the psychological characteristics, problems of growth and development, common jaw and teeth defects, methods of treatment, hospital procedures, and methods of medication and sedation.

Program Needed

The programs grew out of surveys conducted among practicing dentists by the State Division of Health and Central Wisconsin Colony and Training School. Dentists responding to these surveys overwhelmingly indicated a need for this kind of program.

Fox Valley Rainfall Shatters All Records

'Candy' Blamed as 3.92 Inches Sets One-Day High; 8.84 Breaks June Mark

BY DICK JACOBSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Rainfall records in the Fox Cities have been shattered, and it may be the fault of Hurricane Candy.

Wednesday's rainfall of 3.92 inches was the most ever recorded in one day since the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. began operating its weather station in 1927.

The amount of rain which fell when the prolonged wet spell began late Tuesday night, through mid-morning today was 4.25 inches.

A new precipitation mark was set today for the month of June. So far this month, 8.84 inches of rain have fallen, breaking the old record of 8.42 inches which was established in 1944.

John Kurtyka, Wisconsin's weather observer in Appleton, said this morning, "It's a good possibility that we're being hit with the after-effects of Candy who is bringing all this moist air up from the Gulf of Mexico."

Unofficial Record

Kurtyka also noted that The Post-Crescent carried a story on June 12, 1922, reporting that 9 inches of rain fell in Appleton during a 24-hour period the previous day. "This was before our station was established and the rain amount is an unofficial record," Kurtyka said.

The forecast for tonight and Friday isn't encouraging, although it is hoped that the sun will peek through the clouds by the weekend.

The Green Bay U.S. Weather Bureau predicts cloudy and continued cool with occasional rain tonight and Friday.

Up One Foot

Ross Plaine of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Appleton, said the water levels on the Wolf and Fox Rivers have gone up one foot since Wednesday.

He reported that the water is three feet higher than it should be at Little Kaukauna dam near Little Rapids.

Plaine said that all six sluice gates on the Fox at Appleton are open today in an attempt to control the rising waters.

"More gates were opened at the Neenah dam to try to keep Lake Winnebago to its present level of 19 inches," said Plaine.

He indicated that the top level of the lake is 21 1/4 inches and if it goes any higher, "we're in trouble."

Angered over what they considered to be continuous and unresolved major problems with the 1 1/2 year old $50,000 police communication system, the Outagamie County Board's law enforcement committee this morning indicated it would give the radio manufacturer until Aug. 31 to put the system in order, or face possible legal action.

Today's action came after the five-member committee heard two top law enforcement officials explain that the county's police communications system has not operated satisfactorily since shortly after its installation in February, 1967. The system was installed by Motorola Communications and Electronics Inc., of Chicago.

I.L. Lowell Veitch said county police have been operating completely on the city's police radio frequency for more than a week, and have been "on and off" the city system for the past several weeks.

No Satisfaction

"We were better off with the old equipment," Undersheriff Calvin L. Spire told the committee.

"The Little Kaukauna dam is a trouble spot because of extreme water runoff from Apple Creek and Plum Creek," Plaine said.

"We're holding our own," the engineer said. However, when asked what could result if the rain continued through this week he said, "I don't even want to think about it; we'll be in trouble," Plaine observed.

It also was reported that the bay of Green Bay backed up and the Fox River through Green Bay and De Pere was up about three feet resulting in flooding along river banks and downtown Green Bay.

The entire Outagamie County picture hasn't been too bright. Water has been collecting in almost every farm field with a depression.

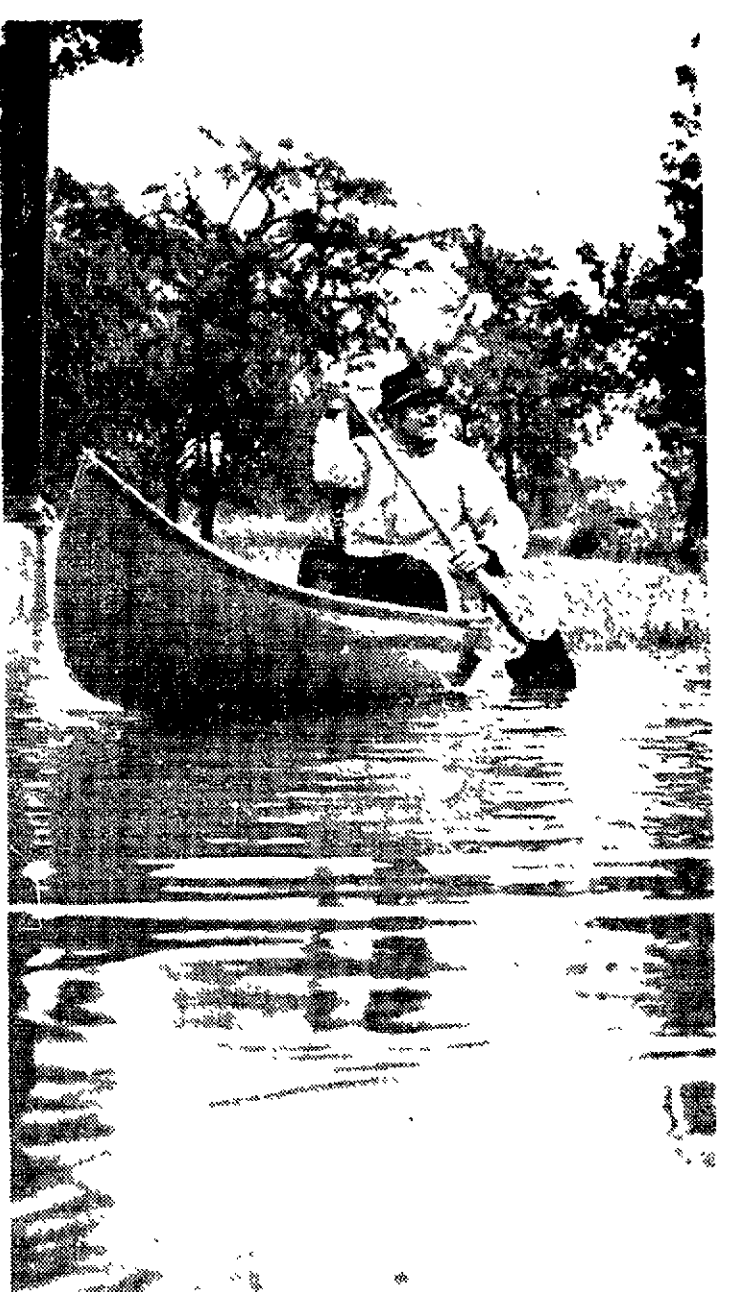

Crops Hurt

Row crops (cabbage and corn) particularly will be hurt, said Rus Luckow, Outagamie County agriculture agent.

He noted that surface drains in fields are taxed to capacity and overflowing in many places. Creeks in the Shioe River watershed are near high levels frequently witnessed in wet spring or fall seasons.

Luckow said that water is beginning to collect in spots along State 156, west of Nichols, but not as extensive or serious as in spring. Capital Drive at County Trunk A closed Wednesday afternoon. He said that excess water normally collects on either side of U.S. 41—County.

Wet Streets Cause Rash of Car Accidents

Nine Injuries Are Reported as Rain Troubles Drivers

Wet slippery streets figured in several of 10 accidents, five of them resulting in a total of nine injuries, in Appleton Wednesday. Four of the injury accidents were on Wisconsin Avenue.

Three persons were hurt in an accident at N. Division Street and W. Wisconsin Avenue at 8:50 p.m. Drivers involved were Richard A. Gade, 23, 313 W. Winnebago St., and Norman C. Tebo, 40, 1738 N. Division St.

Truck-Trailer

Police said that Gade suffered a bump on the head, a right elbow abrasion, and a hand injury, while Tebo had cuts and abrasions to his left elbow. Tebo's 13-year-old son David, suffered bruises to his forehead and left knee.

Police said Gade was northbound on Division, turning left onto Wisconsin, when his car, and the southbound auto driven by Tebo collided.

Guy Hartman, 72, 1631 N. Racine St., suffered a bump on the head about 3 p.m. when a car driven by his wife, Dorothy, collided with a semi-trailer unit driven by Oliver C. Schwartz, 53, route 1, Sheboygan.

Police said that Mrs. Hartman was injured.

Public Hearing Scheduled For Appleton Zoning Code

July 10 Meeting Will Deal With Results of 18-Month Study

A public hearing is set for the night of July 10 by the city council on Appleton's new zoning code which has taken close delays and more hearings to 18 months to draft.

The plan commission last year held several informal hearings on proposed changes and amendments to the new code.

In November, 1967, the proposed zoning code covering the entire city was submitted to the council on Appleton's new zoning code which has taken close delays and more hearings to 18 months to draft.

City Planner Walter Rasmussen said today the "finished product" is now ready for consideration by the council so Appleton can finally have up-dated zoning codes.

Adopted in 1928

Records show the first zoning code was adopted in 1928 and then amended in 1942, 1951 and 1956.

Several compromises have been incorporated in the new zoning code, which represents the city's major planning effort over the past two years.

A new code was one of the recommendations contained in the comprehensive plan prepared for the city sometime ago by a St. Louis consulting firm.

Rasmussen, along with regional planners, played key roles in drafting the new codes to govern Appleton's future zoning and building policies.

Permit Validation For Motorcycle Operators Begins

Validation of driver's licenses for Fox Valley motorcycle operators has begun in Appleton according to John Syheldon, license examiner.

New state laws restrict operation of motor driven cycles and scooters to those licensed for cycle operation.

Drivers holding a valid operator's license can have their permit validated for motorcycle operation if they have regularly operated a cycle for at least one year as owner or full-time operator. They must also have driven at least 5,000 miles on a cycle. Validation fee is $2.

Operator tests will be given later for those not meeting validation requirements.

Records show the first zoning code was adopted in 1928 and then amended in 1942, 1951 and 1956.

More Inspections Ahead - Faster Action Hinted On Rundown Buildings

Citizen complaints that the city is not doing enough to rid Appleton of rundown buildings should be somewhat remedied with a future expansion of the department of inspections.

The observation was made Wednesday night by City Planner Walter C. Rasmussen in response to questions by members of the executive board of the Mayor's Citizens Advisory Committee during a meeting at city hall.

James Schreiter, a board member, said there had been "a lot of complaints" because the city did not take faster action against owners of dilapidated properties.

His comment was in line with recent complaints by aldermen that they have become frustrated in some instances in attempting to get undesirable buildings condemned and torn down in their wards.

Need for Patience

However, Rasmussen said because of various statutory requirements related to condemnation, there was a need for patience and perseverance.

"A lot of buildings have been taken down in Appleton through orders of the city and we will have more in the future," Rasmussen commented.

"You are going to have to be patient and still achieve the net result," he added.

He said under the law there

WSU-O Gets $3 Million Building Loan

OSHKOSH — The U.S. Office of Education has granted a $3 million loan to Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh (WSU-O) to construct a fine arts building.

The announcement was made Wednesday in Washington, D.C., by Sen. Gaylord Nelson.

Total cost of the project is expected to be in excess of $6 million. The State Building Commission already has approved the use of state money for the balance of the project. If schedules are met as they are now planned, the building could be ready for its first use in mid-1970.

The fine arts building will bring together under one roof WSU-O's music, speech, drama and art departments. A television instruction center and the university's FM radio station also will be included.

The building will be bounded by Algoma Boulevard and Woodland and Elmwood avenues.

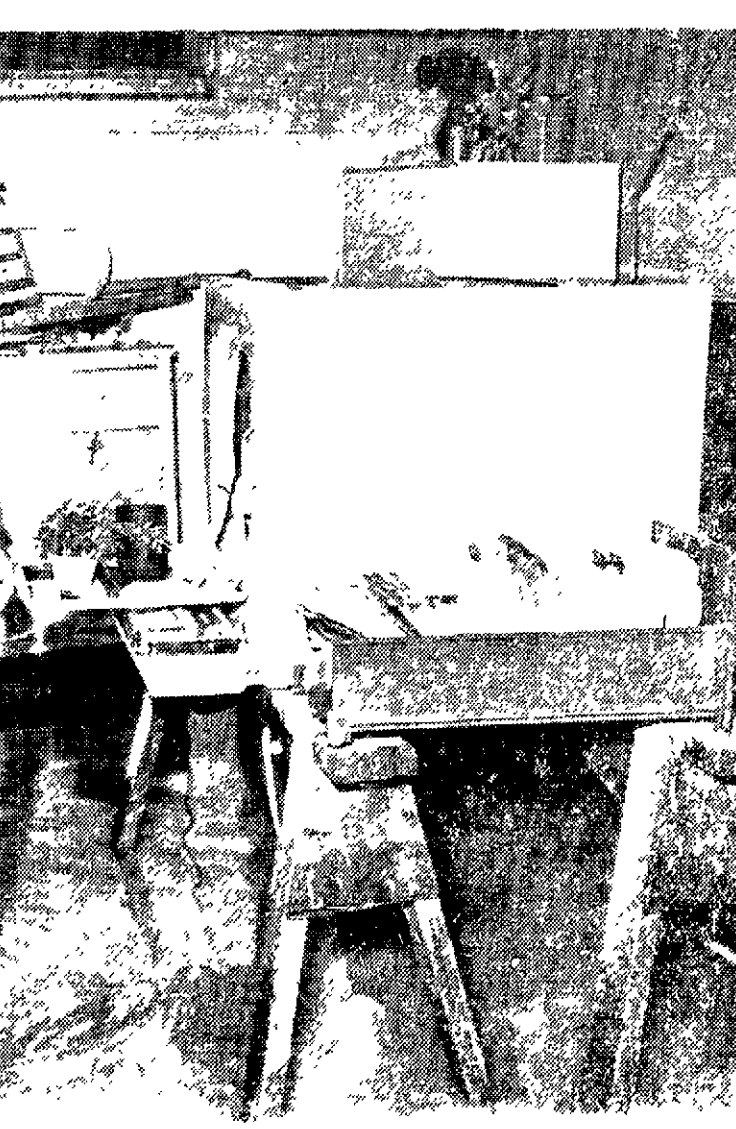

Threaten Legal Action

Angered over what they considered to be continuous and unresolved major problems with the 1 1/2 year old $50,000 police communication system, the Outagamie County Board's law enforcement committee this morning indicated it would give the radio manufacturer until Aug. 31 to put the system in order, or face possible legal action.

Boaters Warned About Fox River

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers today warned boaters to be aware of the strong currents now prevalent in the Fox River.

Engineer Ross Plaine said the currents exist up and down the river because all dams have been opened in an attempt to control the high waters resulting from record rainfall in the past two days.

Supervisors Demand Radio System Repair

tee Spice said he had contacted the Motorola Co. a number of times in past months, but has received little satisfaction. He said he was "promised two weeks ago that two men from Chicago would be here soon to get the system in order."

"I've talked to just about everybody at Motorola about this problem," Spice said.

The undersheriff quoted from a letter he said he wrote to Motorola's regional sales office last August, citing problems the county was having with the system which at that time was only six months old. Spice noted in the letter that his office was "disturbed" over the service given by the company.

Noisy Radio

Both Veitch and Spice said the county's radio system was "noisy" to the point that it could not now be used. The committee was told that much of the transmission equipment has been replaced in recent months, but the problem has not been solved.

Supv. Eugene Kloes of Appleton, committee chairman, said that written complaints were filed with Motorola before the one-year warranty expired, therefore the firm should bear

Schaefer Starts Pre-Trial Hearings

Judge Hopes 'Pilot Program' Will Reduce Court Calendar

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer has set aside five days next month for pre-trial conferences on contested traffic and criminal cases.

It will be the first time in court history here that an organized and formal plan for pre-trial conferences has been tried in other than civil cases. However, the program is in use in several other courts around Wisconsin, including those in Sheboygan and Calumet counties.

Schaefer told The Post-Crescent shortly after his appointment to the criminal court bench last April that he intended to study the pre-trial conference plan. He termed his venture "a pilot program" which if shown to be effective during next month's tryout will be continued on a regular basis.

First Full Day

Schaefer has called occasional pre-trial conferences since succeeding former Judge Gustave J. Keller who retired. However, July 1 will see the first full day of conferences.

Twenty-seven conferences are set for July 1 and another 10 for July 3. They involve state traffic and criminal violations and violations of city, county and town ordinances.

Included are several cases of driving after revocation of license, driving while under the influence of intoxicants, disorderly conduct, speeding, leaving the scene of an accident, and shoplifting.

Thirty-two pre-trial conferences are set for July 8, all involving city of Appleton cases. Included are cases of tavern violations, disorderly conduct, non-registration (failing to yield the right of way, selling beer without a license, failure to have seatbelts, and hit and run).

Another 17 Appleton police cases will be "discussed" during conferences the morning of July 11, Schaefer said.

Criminal Cases

All cases previously scheduled for July 10 have been cancelled to allow for the hearing of 20 pre-trials on criminal cases. Included are alleged instances of shoplifting, worthless checks, burglary, battery, paternity, and conservation violations.

Schaefer said the only matters scheduled for conferences are those in which the defendants have retained attorneys.

Attending the conferences will

Bishop Calls For Vote on Catholic High

Parents in Five Twin City Parishes Must Make Decision

NEENAH - MENASHA — Whether or not Catholic children in the five parishes of the Twin Cities will have secondary education will be a decision of their parents.

The matter was placed squarely in their hands last Friday by Bishop Aloysius Wycislo, Green Bay, after he talked informally with the pastors of the five local parishes.

"He didn't say yes and he didn't say no," Rev. Lawrence Stingle, St. Gabriel's Catholic Church, Neenah, said Wednesday.

"The Bishop said the entire matter should be settled in the democratic way, by a vote of each parent in the five individual parishes. We will take such a ballot in the early fall," Father Stingle added.

"Unless something happens to give financial aid to Catholic education, it will continue to be cut off at the secondary level," the spokesman for the five parishes continued.

"It is too costly and the people cannot support the public schools with their taxes and provide schools for their children's religious training."

"If we do not get some federal aid to Catholic education, we cannot continue."

Elaborating further, he said that parishioners should make a careful examination of their own conscience before the balloting is made in September.

"The alternative will be a strong Confraternity of Christian Doctrine (CCD) program, far exceeding the present religious training we give our youth one hour a week," he concluded.

SST Funds Voted Down By Committee

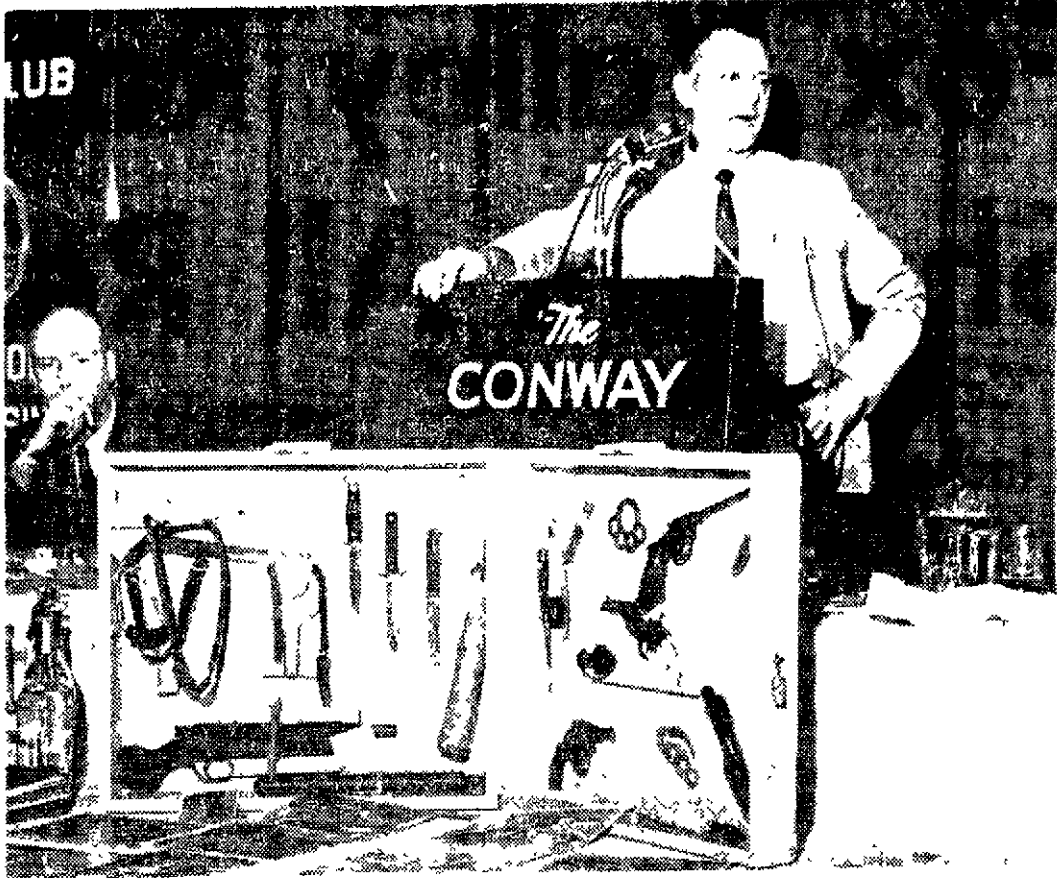

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee voted today to withhold any new funds for development of a supersonic airliner until an acceptable new design is worked out.

The committee turned down the Johnson administration's request for $223 million to carry on the SST project and further recommended that $30 million already advanced be returned to the Treasury.

If supported by Congress, the committee's action would mean at least a year's delay in the effort to build the huge transport, throwing the United States farther behind in its race with France and England, which are working jointly on a similar aircraft.

The $223 million cut was by far the largest in a bill approved by the committee calling for fiscal 1969 appropriations totaling $135.3 billion for the Department of Transportation.

The total is $332 million below administration budget requests and $179.8 million below the amount the department got in fiscal 1968.

Appleton Juvenile Crime Rate Very Serious, Detective Says

"Juvenile problems here are a lot worse than most of you might believe," Detective George W. Weaver told Appleton Kiwanians Wednesday.

The Appleton Police Department's Juvenile Bureau officer said that the juvenile crime rate in certain areas — including burglary and shoplifting — has increased more than 50 per cent over the past year. There also has been a major increase in juvenile drinking offenses.

Weaver told the Downtown Kiwanis Club that the juvenile crime rate in certain areas — including burglary and shoplifting — has increased more than 50 per cent over the past year. There also has been a major increase in juvenile drinking offenses.

Weaver advocated a program whereby an "educational approach" concerning crime prevention and cure is begun soon after children begin first grade. He expressed concern over the increasingly early age at which youngsters commit offenses. "Seventy per cent of the children caught shoplifting in Appleton last year were 10 years of age or younger," Weaver remarked.

Petty Thefts He said there is a "great volume" of petty thefts in the schools. Included, he explained, are thefts from lockers, desks, and teachers' purses. There also have been increasing problems of vandalism caused by children on their way to and from school, and in the schools, according to Weaver.

Shoplifting has become "really bad" in Appleton, he said. Two Appleton stores lost more than $100,000 to shoplifters in a single year. Kiwanians were told Weaver termed shoplifting "just a nickname for theft."

Much of the shoplifting by juveniles is being done after school and during the lunch hours, Weaver said. He cited recent breakings of "shoplifting rings."

Commenting on juvenile drinking, Weaver explained that usually the beer or liquor is taken from homes (burglaries), from parents, or from delivery trucks.

Neither the parents nor the children realize the seriousness of the offenses in many instances, Weaver said. He out-briefly of offenses involving lot worse than most of you might believe," Detective George W. Weaver told Appleton Kiwanians Wednesday.

Jail Terms Asked for All Gun Crimes

State Sheriffs' Recommendations Sent to Knowles

Mandatory jail sentences for conviction in all crimes involving the use of firearms is one of four recommendations made Wednesday by the legislative committee of the Wisconsin Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs Association.

Meeting in Madison, the eight-member state committee also concluded that:

- There is a need for stricter regulations on firearms obtained through mail order houses.
- There should be increased penalties for unlawful use of firearms in the commission of any crime.
- The Wisconsin legislature should clarify the present statutes concerning carrying concealed weapons.

Marx is Member

Outagamie County Sheriff Norbert Marx is co-chairman of the association's legislative committee. Undersheriff Calvin L. Spice is association president.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles asked the association, at its annual summer conference at Lake Delton June 12, to consider the question of state gun control in depth and advise his office as soon as possible. Knowles told the association he did not want to recommend a course of action until he was fully advised about a gun control measure.

Members of the legislative committee, following the all-day meeting, said they intend to devote considerably more study to the gun control proposal and "will keep the Governor's office fully briefed."

Knowles had told the association members at the June conference that special problems could be faced with gun control legislation in Wisconsin because of the large number of licensed hunters.

Appleton City Engineer Robert Pfefferle said that the majority of basements are flooded in the inner core sections of the city. "Homes that weren't affected by the 1962 ordinance requiring sump pumps are experiencing the problem," Pfefferle noted.

The city engineer said that because of the intense rain the sewer system for all practical purposes "is completely saturated."

"Most of the homes with flooded basements have drain tiles connected to the sanitary system, meaning that clear water gets into the sanitary system which is now grossly overloaded," Pfefferle said.

He said that the overload also has resulted in crews from the engineering department street divisions and "everyone we could spare" being out all day Wednesday clearing portions of sewers blocked by debris.

"We're not unique in this overloading problem" Pfefferle pointed out. He explained that 95 per cent of the storm and sanitary sewers in Appleton are separated where at one time they were combined.

"We can't separate when the drain tile gets into the sanitary sewer," the engineer said.

"We would like the general public to know that we're mobilizing all forces available to combat this problem, but nature has got a little bit ahead of us," Pfefferle said.

Storm water was being bypassed into the river at the Appleton sewage disposal plant after it reached maximum capacity. All incoming flow was given primary treatment. Water being bypassed after primary treatment was being chlorinated.

The Appleton Police Department Wednesday and today received numerous complaints of flooded basements. The Outagamie County Sheriff's Department reported that a power wire was down early today at Bluemound Drive and U.S. 10.

The entire north end of the City of Marion and Town of Caroline were without power for several hours Wednesday.

It was reported that the high winds knocked down a 12-volt line resulting in the outage at 11:14 a.m.

Other downed lines affected the towns of Embarrass, Clover Leaf Lake, Tilleda, and the northern part of Polar, White Lake, Langlade, and Elton, the Wisconsin Power and Light Company reported.

All golf courses in the Fox Cities area are soaked. However, Reid Municipal Golf Course today reports that despite the rains they have been receiving calls from golfing enthusiasts who still want to "four the course."

the capacity of the plant, while another 8 million gallons received just primary treatment. The rest was pumped directly into the river and lake system.

Elsewhere in Wisconsin, Janesville had 5.76 inches, less than one inch below the record for the month.

The Chippewa River rose to 11.5 feet in Durand, spilling over into nearby streets and basements. The Pine River overflowed in Richland County, flooding Highway 80 between Richland Center and Hub City.

Highway 131 was closed between La Farge and Ontario in Vernon County after the Kickapoo went over its banks. The St. Croix flooded at Hudson, inundating Lake Front Park and Lake Front Road.

The weather bureau at Duquesne issued a flood warning for southwestern Wisconsin, saying the heavy downpours would cause the Grant, Platte and Pecatonica rivers to overflow.

Green Bay had 2.11 inches of rain in the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

Milwaukee had more than 400 flooded basements, 100 flooded streets and about 15 overflowing culverts. More than 150 workers was a difference between a building being a hazard and a nuisance, making things more complicated for the enforcement agencies.

Tighter Enforcement

Rasmussen pointed out that once Appleton's workable program is approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), it would result in tighter code enforcement of rental as well as owner-occupied homes.

A few amendments to Appleton's proposed workable program will include all types of residential housing under the code. It presently covers only rental units which HUD said did not meet federal requirements.

"Eventually the Department of Inspections will need to hire more inspectors to enforce codes and this is where the Citizens Advisory Committee can lend its support," Rasmussen said. He said the moral support would be needed at budget time when requests for new positions are reviewed.

The board elected Mrs. Patricia Danford its secretary, replacing Mrs. Ann Crowley who is serving on the governmental operations study subcommittee.

be the prosecutor, representing the municipality involved; the police court officer, who will be expected to have a full report of the matter involved; the defense attorney, and the judge. Schaefer said it usually will not be necessary for the defendant to be present, assuming his attorney is authorized to speak for him.

The conferences will be held in Schaefer's chambers, but final dispositions on the cases will be made in open court. Each conference involving traffic or minor criminal cases is set for 10 minutes, while other criminal matters are scheduled for 15 minutes each.

Clarity Issues

Schaefer, who said he has had a favorable response from attorneys, explained that the use of pre-trial conferences could clarify issues and legal questions in some cases and could reduce the number of trials.

Even more so, it could mean a lessening of the problems created when pleas are changed or reductions or dismissals are asked in cases on the day of trial.

"All parties involved will have a chance to take an analytical look at their cases" to determine if they still want to go ahead with trial, Schaefer explained. In some cases, dismissals, or lesser charges, where they are warranted, can be agreed upon by both sides. In other instances, the defense attorney might realize he has a weak case and a settlement will be reached without trial, Schaefer said.

Schaefer now has Branch 2 court cases scheduled into December. He hopes that the pre-trial conference plan, by allowing for removal of cases that do not warrant trial, can expedite his over-loaded court calendar and yet provide for just settlements of pending matters.

Menasha Failure

The Menasha Water and Light Commission reported a power failure in downtown Menasha at 2:30 p.m. The failure, which lasted about 10 minutes, was caused by the wind which broke a limb and fell across power lines.

The steady rainfall during the past several days also caused numerous phone calls to the Neenah and Menasha city halls, fire departments and police stations.

The Neenah Fire Department said it pumped out 22 Neenah basements, while the Menasha department report reported two basement floods.

In addition, a Neenah home was evacuated Wednesday since the sidewalk was higher than the house level and storm water poured in. The Neenah Fire Department pumped water out of the house from 11:30 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Spokesmen at the Menasha Locks said 3.5 inches of rain has fallen on the Twin City area since Monday. From 8 a.m. Wednesday to 8 a.m. today, it recorded a total of 2.24 inches.

At the Neenah-Menasha Sewage Treatment Plant, officials estimated more than half of the incoming flow was by-passed into the river.

The sewage system handled effluent, mostly rain water, at a rate of 65 million gallons per day. Only 18 million gallons received secondary treatment.

State Health Board Okays $18 Million Building Plan

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — An $18 million building program designed to fund 16 major construction projects and to complete delayed programs from the past three years has been requested by the State Board of Health and Social Services.

The requests, topped by more than $9 million for the Division of Mental Hygiene and $6.7 million for the state's prison system, will be included in the budget request for the coming two years.

That request, now being readied for the incoming governor and legislature, will be expanded by the inclusion of a sizable minor remodeling and repair program and operating budget requests for the department during the summer.

Projects Hurried

The $18.04 million major project request includes $3.2 million for two projects approved during the past three years but being hurried due to escalating costs and design changes.

Included are design changes calling for faster — but not higher — spending on an adult reception and treatment center for the Division of Corrections and additional construction funds for the planned Northern Boys School at Merrill.

Last week the department opened bids on that project and found them $1 million over estimates, which were $6.76 million.

Under the building program approved the mental hygiene division was allotted $9.16 million of the requested funds for nine building projects in Wisconsin's mental hospital and colony system.

The state Division of Corrections followed with $6.74 million for six construction programs in the state prison system.

Center for Blind

Also included was $1.07 million for the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation for the construction of a rehabilitation center for the blind in the Milwaukee area. Federal matching funds will be used in the project, designed to diagnose and train from 20 to 50 residential students.

The division of Business Management will also receive $1.06 million under the request for the construction of a food handling and processing facility at the Waupun state prison central warehouse.

Over Three Years

The board also approved a priority ranking for the 17 projects designed to guide lawmakers in cutting back on the building budget request. Under the ranking system adopted, the most important request will be the fulfillment of the two programs approved in past building programs. Least valued is a proposed $580,000 office and experimental animal care facility at Central Colony near Madison.

New Cottages Recommended For Hospital

Winnebago Wants $1.27 Million for Child Facilities

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Construction of two children's cottages at Winnebago State Hospital and a new cottage at the Women's Home in Taychedah have been called for by the State Board of Health and Social Services.

The action came as the group approved more than $18 million in building budget requests for the department for the coming two years.

Gubernatorial, legislative and state building commission approval still must be gained before the local projects can be started.

Space for Children

The Winnebago State Hospital building requests, totaling about $1.27 million are aimed at providing additional living space for children at the institution. The board noted the children's population has grown over five times its original population in 1962 to a 1967 level of 150.

During the coming two years it will reach 200 children, the board was told.

The building now being used for the young patients is inadequate, was designed for different purposes, and cannot be adapted for the present uses, the budget request said.

The requested cottages would provide facilities which would permit the grouping of children in family-type settings of eight or less per unit.

$395,000 Request

The Women's Home request is $395,000.

The multi-purpose building would ease the space demands of the rising population of the home, but also allow the segregation of disruptive inmates.

The proposed building would provide space for the housing of 25 difficult and unresponsive women and four maximum security isolation rooms.

The facility would be considered a free-standing housing unit, separate from the general inmate population and the general traffic pattern of the institution.

Police Investigating Coin Theft From Home

KAUKAUNA — Police are investigating the theft of over $10 in change from savings banks at the Keith Eifler residence, 521 E. 14th St.

The loss was reported Tuesday and is believed to have taken place last Thursday or over the weekend when no one was home. No sign of forced entry could be found, but a hidden key may have been used to gain entry. A total of $10 was missing from one bank and an undetermined amount from a second.

Building proposals making it through the budget process will be designed and constructed over a three-year period, due to time lags in planning, bidding and building.

Major mental hygiene projects requested include $2.2 million in administration buildings for Northern and Southern Colonies, and a $1.3 million education building addition at Central Colony. Other colony projects include a $1 million power plant for the southern facility and almost $1 million for a vocational and evaluation center at the northern institution.

Corrections division projects approved also include the expansion of the state prison generating plant at Waupun at a cost of $600,000, and $461,000 for the replacement of maintenance buildings at the boys school at Wales.

Your Money's Worth Control of Inflation Will Bring Stability

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Q. What would be "reasonable price stability" in the U.S.?
A. It would be a price increase averaging around 2 per cent a year.
Q. Why shouldn't "price stability" mean stable prices?

Porter

A. Because rarely in modern times have prices in this country remained unchanged over a full year or actually declined. The years during which price increases have been fractional or actual decreases have usually been years of large-scale unemployment. We are not prepared to tolerate a high unemployment rate in exchange for no price increases. And we haven't learned how to mesh virtually stable prices with full employment.

Q. If reasonable price stability is defined as a 2 per cent annual price rise, what is inflation?

A. Anything above a 3 per cent rise a year for a protracted period of time.

Q. What's the rate of price increase now?

A. It's running at an annual rate of 4 per cent, unquestionably in the range of "inflation."

Key Goal

It's generally understood that a key goal of the income tax increase-spending cuts package is to curb demands for goods and services. The theory is that a restraint on our demands will help force prices back from today's inflationary 4 per cent a year rate of rise to a more reasonable rate and finally to the acceptable 2 per cent annual increase.

But it's not generally understood what the words "reasonable price stability" and "inflation" mean in hard numbers. The dictionaries, for instance, define inflation as "a sharp and sudden rise in prices" or "a sharp and sudden fall in the value of money in circulation," but they significantly omit the percentages which would bring those words to life.

Thus, the explanation I'm submitting here, and incidentally, the numbers are accepted by most top economists.

Of course, a 2 per cent a year rise in prices reflects erosion in the buying power of your dollars. Over a 10-year period, a 2 per cent annual price rise would slash the purchasing power of your dollar from 100 cents to 82 cents.

In our growing, dynamic society, though, our income gains

Ordeal of the Baldie

Only New Philosophy Replaces Fallen Hair

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals is to become bald.

Some 40 per cent of men are afflicted to a greater or lesser degree with hereditary early baldness. Yet each victim to whom it happens couldn't feel more surprised if he had been struck by lightning.

The first warning often comes from an offhand remark by a barber:

"Getting a bit thin on top, sir. I'd do something about it if I were you."

Panic seizes you at once. What can you do about it?

Every time you use your comb after that and a hair comes out it looks like the last will generally outrun price increases averaging a modest 2 per cent a year.

What's more, if you're saving money, you generally will be able to earn returns on it which will more than offset the 2 per cent yearly erosion in your money's purchasing power.

We have made it clear that we will tolerate this rate of loss in the buying power of our dollar in order to achieve high production, employment and income.

But a 3 per cent annual rate? That would be intolerable over any period of time.

A 3 per cent yearly price rise would mean that the dollar which buys 100 cents of goods and services today would buy only 74.4 cents worth in 10 years and would buy only 55.4 cents worth in the marketplace in 20 years. A loss coming close to 50 per cent in only 20 years would openly invite a massive flight from dollars. To accept it would be to forfeit our position of financial leadership in the world.

A 4 per cent annual rate? That would obviously be even more intolerable over any period.

A 4 per cent yearly rise — which is what we are now having, mind you — would slash the 100 cents dollar in your pocket today to a buying power of only 67.6 cents in 10 years and to a buying power of only 45.6 cents in 20 years. While small, underdeveloped lands can suffer this erosion, great powers cannot — and remain great.

Outlook

What is the outlook? The outlook is that with the tax increase reducing take-home pay and net after-tax profits, demands will be moderated and price pressures will be lessened. After a while, this lessening of demand pressures will lead to lessening of pressures on wage cost. Excessive demands will stop pulling up prices so sharply; excessive costs will stop pushing up prices so sharply.

Inflation, then, will gradually come under control. The annual rate of rise in prices will slip back to 3 per cent and under. We will be on our way back to the pace of increase which is the equivalent of stability in our economy.

Lying Becomes Major Issue In Blackstone Investigation

All Should be Jailed, Angry Senator Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The certainty that investigating senators have been lied to has become a major issue in a probe of a federal antipoverty grant intended to rehabilitate members of two Chicago street gangs.

"If the stories that have been told here are false, everyone involved should go to jail," Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., said Wednesday at the end of the fifth day of hearings into the Office of Economic Opportunity's $927,000 grant for the gangs.

"Transparent perjury has been committed," declared the Rev. John R. Fry, a slim, intense Presbyterian minister who has been charged with encouraging members of the Blackstone gang to step up criminal activity. "This is disgusting contempt of the Senate."

"Malicious Liar"

"I look at Rev. Fry right now and say he is a malicious liar," said George Rose, former Ranger "warlord" who has testified under oath Fry allowed his church to be used as a gang arsenal, that he allowed marijuana to be smoked there, that he relayed an order for the killing of a narcotics peddler and

Joy, Turtle Return Together to GOP

HUDSON, Fla. (AP) — Tradition in Hudson, Fla., calls for a race between Florida gopher turtles on July 4th. Perennial rivals are turtles painted appropriately and entered by local Republican and Democratic clubs.

Tragedy struck the Republicans this year, though. Their turtle disappeared. The only other to be had in town was an extra belonging to the Democrats. The GOP supporters were wary.

But Wednesday joy returned. The Republican turtle came home and the race is on.

that he warned gang members should be defrocked and sent to jail.

"I specifically and categorically deny each and every one of these allegations," Fry told Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., at one point in Wednesday's hearing.

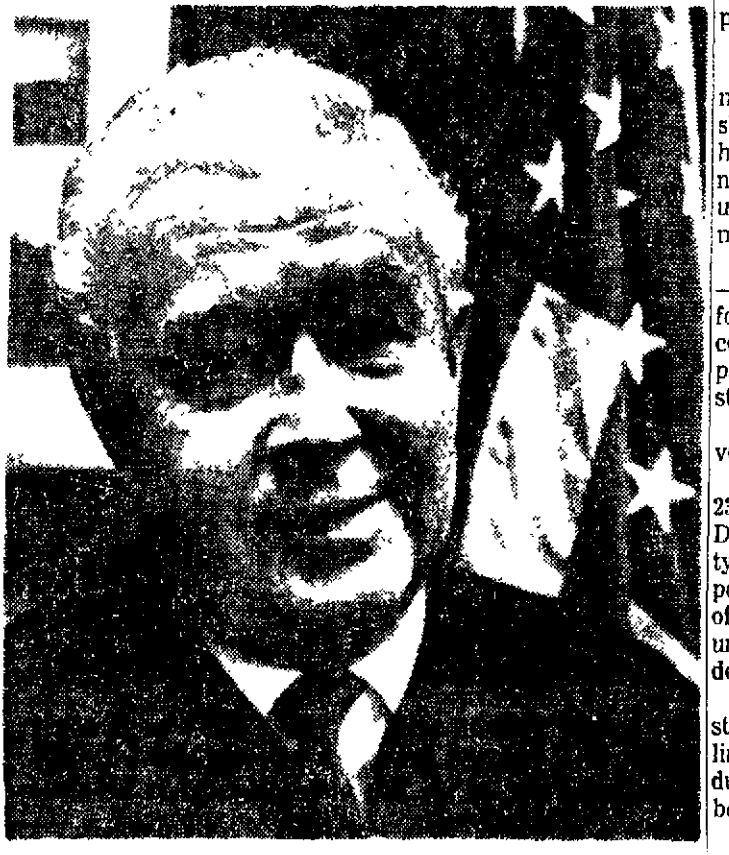

Meanwhile, the regional President, 23. Ranger president, to kill bytery in charge of Fry's church met in Chicago, voted to support what they called his "creative and courageous" approach to the solution of urban problems.

Character 'Maligned'

They protested against what they said is the "manner in which the character of the Rev. John Fry has repeatedly been maliciously maligned" by Senate witnesses.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., echoed other senators in saying the church should hold its own investigation of the allegations before criticizing the conduct of the hearing before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee.

"We haven't maligned anyone," Mundt said. "But somebody is lying. If he (Fry) is guilty of 10 per cent of the allegations made against him, he

Associate Justice Nominee LBJ-Thornberry Long Friends

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the two young Texas boys met more than 45 years ago, there was nothing in the backgrounds of either Lyndon Johnson or Homer Thornberry to indicate they would achieve more than moderate success.

Yet on Wednesday, President Lyndon Johnson nominated Homer Thornberry, the only child of deaf mutes, to be an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Thornberry will take the place on the court held by Abe Fortas, whom the President nominated to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice.

When the two met, Thornberry was a page in the Texas legislature, while Johnson was around the State House because his father was a legislator.

Parents Were Teachers

Both men were of modest background. Thornberry's parents taught at a school for the deaf, and their careers remained closely related as they moved toward political success.

Born 59 years ago, Thornberry made politics his life. Immediately after graduating from law school at the age of 27, he was elected to the Texas legislature. He also served on the Austin, Tex., city council and when Johnson left the U.S. House of Representatives in 1948 to go to the Senate, Thornberry won the House seat.

Thornberry, a man of medium height and white wavy hair, remained in Congress until 1963 when, through the efforts of the then Vice President Johnson, he was appointed a federal district judge.

Circuit Court

In 1965, Johnson appointed his old friend to the Circuit Court of Appeals. The swearing in ceremony took place at the President's ranch at Johnson City.

Thornberry was considered a liberal in Congress. While he declines to classify his leanings as a judge, many think he will join the generally liberal justices on the Supreme Court, which includes Abe Fortas, William O. Douglas, Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr., and sometimes Potter Stewart.

A quick look at his decisions as a judge in the lower courts, particularly on the 5th Circuit Court, which handled many racial cases from the Deep South, reinforces these views.

Senate Defeats Effort to Cut Bombing Funds

Proxmire Proposed Taking $268 Million From Appropriation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate overrode its Vietnam critics Wednesday and returned to the House a paradoxical $9 billion supplemental appropriations bill containing money for welfare and war.

Senators turned back 79 to 10 an effort by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to cut out of the bill $268 million which he said would pay for a 33 per cent increase in the number of B52 bomber attacks.

The vote on passage was 87 to 2.

Proxmire claimed the additional sorties would devastate the country and alienate the civilian population; those supporting the increase warned that failure to vote approval would undermine the U.S. position at the Paris peace talks.

The $9 billion would be added to appropriations for the current year if the House accepts the Senate's inclusion of $151 million worth of great society programs.

Additions

Among the additions are $75 million for summer jobs in slums, $25 million for project head start, $32 million for a new school lunch program for underprivileged children and $13 million for rat control.

The bulk of the appropriation, $6.1 billion, is earmarked for carrying on the war. The bill contains $1 billion for federal pay raises and $1.1 billion for state public - welfare programs.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., voted against the measure.

"I've been in politics for 22 years and I've never had a racist in my organization," Nixon said in New York Wednesday.

"From what I've read, Wallace's appeal is in the direction of racist elements. Both major parties disassociate themselves from him."

Nixon said he hopes Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Democratic presidential aspirant, will make a similar statement, "and that should clear the air."

Rockefeller Accusation

New York Gov. Rockefeller had accused the Nixon camp of courting Wallace support to win southern votes.

Wallace, meanwhile, said he will not withdraw from the presidential race under any circumstances.

The former Alabama governor said early in his campaign he would withdraw if it appeared candidates of either major party would adopt the policies he said America needs.

But now "it's too late," Wallace said in Montgomery, Ala. He said for any of the Republican or Democratic candidates to support his policies now it would only make them more likely to come to pass.

In the Democratic race, Humphrey said every able American child should be guaranteed an

Support of Wallace, any Other Racist Unwanted, Nixon Declares

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, replying to statements by GOP presidential rival Nelson A. Rockefeller, says he wants no support from third party presidential candidate George C. Wallace.

"I've been in politics for 22 years and I've never had a racist in my organization," Nixon said in New York Wednesday.

"From what I've read, Wallace's appeal is in the direction of racist elements. Both major parties disassociate themselves from him."

Tax Spending Measure Ready to be Signed Within Next Few Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax increase-spending cut measure will come law as soon as the customary review of government agencies affected is finished, President Johnson said at a news conference Wednesday.

The bill, calling for a $10 billion tax increase and a $6 billion slash in spending, probably will get the President's signature within the next day or two, he said.

The conference was called mainly to announce Johnson's acceptance of the resignation of Chief Justice Earl Warren, and his nominations of Abe Fortas to the Warren seat and of Homer Thornberry to replace Fortas.

Within The Law

On a range of other topics, Johnson said those concerned about the nation's poor people should "make appropriate representation and certainly express their viewpoints," but only within the law.

"I think that everyone in Washington in a position to serve the people of this country are going to do everything they can to aid the poor," the President said during a Wednesday news conference. He had been asked if any good purpose could be served by leaders of the Poor People's Campaign turning to civil disobedience.

He also said he hopes to get his way with Congress on requiring registration of every gun in America and licensing of all gun owners.

Otherwise the conference produced results pretty much on the negative side, Johnson said that.

Summit Rumors

He knows of no basis for rumors of a U.S.-Soviet summit session or a presidential trip to Russia.

He is unable to evaluate reasons for intensified Communist pressure on West Berlin.

He preferred not to comment on the infiltration and ground situations in Vietnam or on some possible offensive.

He had no comment either on a projected trip to Paris by Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota. The Democratic presidential hopeful has said he might talk with Hanoi representatives at the peace conference.

To a request whether he could pin down one way or the other reports that he might go to Latin America in July, Johnson replied: "When I can, I will."

Devotees Claim Yoga Key To Sound Mind and Body

By Rangaswami Satakopan

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's No. 1 beauty says yoga has helped her up the ladder to fame—and has given her inner peace at the same time.

Miss Sumita Sen, Miss India 1968, says she acquired finishing touches to her form and poise through one year of yoga practice. She claims that "yoga contributes to outward grace — and to inward strength."

The word yoga apparently is derived from Yug which means unite—unite the body and the mind. It is not a mere physical exercise, but involves mental and spiritual exercise also.

There are no violent jerks and no strains. It is a series of slow movements, accompanied by breath control. Above all, the mind must be free from worries and must be calm.

Among foreign devotees of Yoga in India is the wife of Asko Ivalo, the Finnish ambassador.

At a yoga exhibition in New Delhi, at which Miss India displayed her graces, 62-year-old Mrs. Ivalo also demonstrated the ancient art. The bodily grace she exhibited was enough to make a teenage girl turn green with envy.

Mrs. Ivalo suffered a broken leg in a motor accident two years ago. "With the help of yoga, I am on my feet again, as if nothing ever happened to me," she said.

Mrs. Ivalo starts her yogic exercises after a few minutes of meditation to acquire inner peace. She said she repeats to herself in slow tones, almost in a whisper, "Om Shanti, Shanti, Shanti—God, peace, peace, peace."

This is accompanied by slow breathing. She does not start her exercises until she has found mental peace.

The exhibition was held by T. N. Sun, director of the New Delhi Yoga Academy. In his introductory remarks he said, "Yoga is a must for every individual who wants to develop a sound mind in a sound body."

"Sickness is a sin and weakness is a crime and yoga helps to overcome both."

Claims Cure Diseases

Sun claims yoga cures many diseases. He was a tuberculosis patient as a young man and says doctors had given him up. But now at the age of 54 he claims he is "fit as a fiddle."

There are different yoga postures for curing ailments such as rheumatism, dyspepsia, asthma, hypertension, constipation, diabetes, gastric troubles, insomnia and obesity, he said.

Yoga can even help stop India's population explosion, he claims, because there are some exercises which prevent conception.

Low Cal Picnics

A Lovely writes: I need ideas for low-calorie, basket picnics. The very idea seems silly. In my mind a picnic is no time to count calories. But I must, as our doctor has put my husband on a reducing diet. We love to picnic and take a basket to some favorite spot every week end.

The Answer: Low-calorie picnic foods can be just as satisfying and far more interesting than the customary sandwich and potato salad. For example, these menus:

1. Cold beef bouillon on the rocks, with onion-ring crisp snacks, cold sliced roast beef (2 slices), beefsteak tomatoes, thick and salted, tossed green salad, dieter's Italian dressing, crusty rolls (1) lightly buttered, melon slices cut in papery rings.

2. Chilled cherry tomatoes and dilled carrot sticks cold broiled

3. Radishes, celery and green pepper strips, cold broiled lobster tails (2), string bean and red onion salad, dieter's French dressing, thin-sliced bread and whipped butter sandwiches (2), berries of choice, sweetened with sugar substitute and cookies (2).

Do you really know the calorie counts of the foods you eat? Our booklet, Pocket Calorie Counter, tells the score at a glance. It also gives a diet plan—a way to eat and slim. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller, care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin. (Copyright, 1968)

Perhaps we can see what made the great detective so vehement. South put up dummy's queen of hearts at the first trick, but East produced the king and South won with the ace.

Declarer led a trump and tried a finesse with dummy's jack. East won with the queens of spades and returned a heart. West continued with a third round of hearts, and declarer had to ruff in dummy with the king of trumps.

Now East was bound to get a second trump trick with his ten of spades, and the ace of clubs provided the setting trick.

You don't have to be a great detective to see that South was the criminal in this sordid little tale of life in the lower depths. See if you can spot South's crime before you read on.

Nasty Crime

South's trump finesse was one of the nastiest little crimes of the century. He should lead out the ace and king of trumps instead of wasting his time on a risky finesse. The odds are then better than 2 to 1 in his favor; the finesse was only an even money shot.

If the trumps break 3-2 South is home after taking the ace and king even though the queen does not fall. Declarer then begins to run the diamonds. East may ruff if he likes, but then dummy's jack of trumps remains to stop the hearts. The defenders can take one trump, one heart and the ace of clubs, but nothing else.

Witless Wonder Tells All

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — The absent-minded professor who winds the cat and puts out the clock is in full possession of his wits compared to me. I would put the cat to bed, give the clock a saucer of milk and stand outside all night, ticking.

This scatter-brain trait of mine is not new, even though it is becoming more apparent daily. Way back when the kids were little and the family was sitting around the dinner table I very carefully tied a bib around my husband's neck while our youngest, for whom it was intended, gurgled in glee.

Coffeepot Treat

I've not only poured the coffee into the sugar bowl instead of the cup, but I once ran the electric coffeepot through its entire cycle with nothing in it but water. It made a hot, but not very peppery, drink.

Not long ago I put some potatoes on to cook and stepped outside to move the hose to a new position in the yard. This done, I spotted a neighbor across the street and went over to say hello. Our chat lasted quite awhile—in fact, until I saw water from the hose pouring out into the street.

Dried Potatoes

When I went back to turn it off I discovered that, while there was too much water on the grass, there wasn't enough in the pot with the potatoes. Oh, well, it was an old pan anyhow.

Then there was the time I went to the refrigerator to get a jar of mustard. I couldn't find it anywhere even though I was certain there should be some in plain sight. After a long search, I finally decided to get a new jar out, but before I could open the cabinet I had to put down what was in my hand. It was the mustard, which I had taken out without realizing it when I first opened the refrigerator.

Window-Cleaned Hair

All the new spray products really have me confused. I recently grabbed a can from the bathroom shelf and sprayed my hair with window-cleaner instead of lacquer. It made it nice and shiny but didn't do much for my coiffure. Just the other day I suddenly heard rain on the roof. This was rather strange as the sun was shining and besides, we don't have a roof, being on the bottom floor of a two-story garden apartment. It turned out my upstairs neighbor had forgotten to put the hose from her washing machine into the sink and the water was raining out onto the floor.

I enjoyed helping her mop up the mess. It was good to know I'm not, the only witless wonder on the block.

More Paint Advised for Barn Project

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: We had a 100-year-old barn of rough oak painted for the first time. Two coats of white, sprayed on, which didn't cover too well. Now we would like to know if we could use creosote over the paint — Canton.

A: You must be awfully fond of the smell of creosote, friend. Or else the barn must be half a mile away. But don't expect any wood preservative, even the transparent odorless type, to be really effective on areas where the paint is still good; the stuff would be kept out of the wood fibers. I'd recommend seeing if another coat or two of the spray paint won't do the job you originally had in mind.

Q: Is it possible to paint the red brick fireplace white? If so, what type paint? We burn logs quite frequently. — Columbus.

A: Sure it's possible. Use any good paint or enamel, gloss, semi-gloss or flat; oil or latex. But friend, be mighty sure you'll want it painted. Removing paint from brick is one of the world's toughest removal jobs.

Some time back the question of whether asphalt paint lining flower boxes would harm plant

Your backyard booby traps may be nearly as dangerous as those found on a battlefield. Safety precautions will insure a healthful summer for the family.

For example, there are the swimming pool horror tales. A neighbor's completely guarded pool may be just as dangerous for inquisitive neighboring tots as an unfenced one. One person had a fence with locked gate and a cover over a pool but a child drowned in rain water that had collected in the pool cover after a down-pour. The person who had taken all these precautions obviously was safety-minded, yet an unsafe condition arose that should have been noted.

The child of a well-known theatrical personality was outdoors with nurse, mother, father and teen-age sister. He managed to run barefoot in the sand over hot embers left from the previous night's luau. His badly burned feet gave him and the family an unhappy summer.

Broken glass is another bugaboo for children who enjoy running around barefoot and even for adults who attempt to remove it with bare hands. One gardener bent down to pick up a bottle that proved to be broken. She wound up in the hospital with a severe cut.

Another potential danger—particularly to children allergic to bees—are yellowjacket nests in the ground where children are likely to play.

Glass doors that lead to gardens and patios cause a great many accidents even to wary adults. A spiral motif in the center of each door or a little border of something or other at the bottom of the doors may provide warning. Removable muntins can provide visual restraints.

Slippery surfaces around pools should be carpeted in nonskid materials and the pool should be inspected by the family scuba expert before it is used by unwary guests. Many accidents are caused because a person dives into a pool that is loaded with children's toys. One person dived into such a pool before his host had arisen, hitting his head on the raised ladder of a large metal fire engine.

Keep Safety Rules

Safety rules shouldn't be left at home when one goes off on a day trip. How often does one see in a small craft a big child wearing a little lifejacket that says "good for up to 50 lbs."—the same one he had when he was 4 years old.

All sorts of safety clothing is available in sporting goods shops but entire families will board a boat completely unprepared for emergencies.

Country and shore doctors and resort hospital clinics do a thriving summer business as the result of some of the strangest little accidents. Everyone should make a visit to such an emergency station before he begins his vacation in the area.

A person should think twice about letting a small child bait a fishhook or run barefoot on an unclean beach.

Doctors extract fishhooks from fingers, eyes, ears and other unlikely places of children and adults. One deep sea fisherman had the tip of his finger bitten off by a fish. Another cut his arm, eagerly trying to scale a small fish with a big butcher knife.

Outpatient departments of hospital clinics take on an atmosphere of comedy at times when inquisitive little boys may be seen sitting with an arm stuck in a bottle or thumb in the small hole of a flower pot.

But it isn't only the lollipop set that has amusing freak accidents.

One man with teeth marks on his arm explained that he had reached in a zoo cage to retrieve his child's sweater and he had been bitten by a monkey. Well—that's what he told the doctor.

Versatile Food Wraps Invaluable Laborsavers

Knowing what kinds of food wraps there are and when to use each to its best advantage can open a whole bag of labor-saving tricks. With the eating-out season heading into full swing, what better time than now to bone up on the facts?

Foil — Cook in it, freeze in it, bake in it, or store foods in it — that's how versatile this standby is. When you think how many times a day you reach for the box, don't you sometimes wonder how you ever got along without it? The lightweight kind, popularly known as "regular," comes in 12-inch-wide rolls of 25, 75, and 200 feet. Use it for wrapping picnic or lunch-box sandwiches, or for storing foods in the refrigerator.

Broiling or freezing foil — or whatever you call it — is heavier and stronger to resist splitting and tearing. Most familiar is 18 inches wide, but don't overlook the newer 14-inch width which fits most broiler pans. Choose this for lining the firebox of your grill before adding briquettes and to save work at cleanup time. Or wrap meats in it for grilling, shape baking containers, line casseroles. A most-often-asked question: Which side of the foil — shiny or dull — should be placed next to the food? Manufacturers tell us it really doesn't matter.

Self-sealing or transparent wraps — Because they cling, they do a superb job of sealing in flavor and keeping foods fresh. Rolls contain from 50 to 200 feet and come in varying widths. But before you open any box, read the starting directions to avoid tangles.

Waxed paper — This old-timer, often taken for granted today, is still one of the thriftiest, when an airtight covering isn't needed. Most brands are triple-waxed and come 12 inches wide in varying lengths. Use it to wrap foods for cupboard, refrigerator, or lunch boxes, or to line baking pans or cookie or candy boxes.

Freezer wraps — Tops in convenience and a must for freezer owners. They're specially treated to make them moisture — and vaporproof. Standard-size rolls come 18 inches wide and 50 feet long. If you're keeping a close watch on your budget and fix large quantities of foods for the freezer, these are your best buys. And in this case, place the shiny side next to the food.

Transparent bags — Look for clear or quilted in handy boxes or tear-off rolls, all with twist fasteners. Reusable, they come small enough to fit a sandwich or big enough to hold a turkey.

To help your cotton dresses keep their shape longer and to make them easier, iron to dry them on a wooden hanger. They hang smooth and straight and dry without wrinkles.

Use a Wishbone and String To Make a Flower Basket

BY CAPPY DICK

By winding string or yarn around a wishbone you can turn it into a miniature flower basket like that in Figure 3. It's fun to do.

Use a chicken wishbone. Wash it to clean it of meat. While it is drying, make a tiny tassel to be tied to the bottom of the basket to hide the knob of the wishbone. This is done by wrapping the string or yarn around a finger 10 or 12 times and tying the loops together with one end of the string. Tie the tassel to the knob of the wishbone as in Figure 1.

Without breaking the string, begin to wind the remainder of it around and around the base of the wishbone just above the tassel. After six or eight turns, bringing the string to that point where the sides of the wishbone are far enough apart, start to weave the string in a figure eight, going over one side of the bone and under the other as in Figure 2. As you weave, push the strands close together so the bone will be completely covered.

When you have arrived at the thick end of each branch of the bone, tie the string tightly around one branch. Then, with some more string, make a handle by braiding three strands. Tie this braid to the wishbone just below the knobs at the ends, allowing half an inch of braid to extend beyond each knob. Shred these ends to make tassels as in Figure 3. Also cut the loops in the tassel at the bottom and shred the strands to make them fuzzy.

Put a small artificial flower in the basket (Figure 3) by simply slipping the stem between the strands forming the covering of the bone.

Tomorrow: New marble game you easily can make at home!

Just The Type

If 1,140 separate pieces of type are required by a printer to number the pages of a certain book, each piece of type being used but once, how many pages are there in this book?

Answer

There are 416 pages. The first 9 pages need but one piece of type each, and the next 90 pages two pieces each, or 189 pieces of type in all. Subtract 189 from 1,140, and since the succeeding pages from 100 on require 3 pieces of type each, divide 951 by 3, and add 99 to the result.

Silver Disappears at Parties; Writer Hopes to Prevent It

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been staring at this piece of paper for 15 minutes, not knowing how to put my problem into words. Well, here goes: Have you ever heard of counting the silverware when the company leaves? I never thought I'd have to do it, but I was wrong.

Several months ago we had dinner at the home of friends. I noticed Mrs. A. had at least five different patterns of sterling silver—service for two in one pattern, three in another pattern, and so on. She had service for four in the same pattern I have.

This woman is in our bridge club and she has been here several times for lunch as well as for dinner parties. Recently I was preparing for a buffet supper for 12 when I discovered I was short 3 teaspoons, 2 dinner forks, 2 salad forks, a sugar shell and a cake server. Have you any suggestions as to how I can hang on to the silver I have left? Don't tell me not to invite her anymore. She is a close friend and her husband and my husband are business associates. — Tarnished Relationship

Dear Tarnished: The next time you are in the woman's home make a point of the fact that some of her silver is like yours. Ask her, too, why she doesn't settle on one pattern instead of trying so many. Do it privately and be sure to convey the message that you are interested in her answers—not just making small talk. She'll get the message.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had to write and comment on your advice to "Countdown Mother"—the woman who confessed she hated her daughter and treated her shabbily from the day the child was born.

Several women at our card club discussed that letter and most of them said they couldn't understand how a mother in her right mind could despise her own child. I remained silent although I was well qualified to speak since I was such a mother myself.

One day I slapped my child so hard she fell off the chair. She had asked for a second helping of mashed potatoes and wouldn't eat it. Her nose began to bleed and I couldn't stop it I called the doctor.

When he came I was petrified because the child had lost so much blood. He asked me what happened. I told him the truth. That wonderful doctor urged me to get psychiatric help. He offered to arrange for an appointment at the community clinic.

After 16 months of therapy I am a new woman. I now understand why I hated that child. Furthermore, with understanding has come complete acceptance, if not genuine love. Please continue to tell all mothers who have hostile feelings toward their children to get professional help. It changed my life and saved my daughter.

— Countdown Mother Number Two

Dear other: Thank you for your letter. It should give encouragement to other mothers who suffer with the same problem. Knowing that there is help, that such a situation is not utterly hopeless, can be immensely supportive.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

UW-Green Bay Panel To Discuss Student Unrest on Channel 11

WLUK-TV 'Campus Report' Program Set for Sunday, Monday Mornings

BY JINGO
Everybody's wondering and worrying a bit about the student unrest that keeps popping up with regularity on college and university campuses across the nation.

Jingo
What's behind it ... what does it mean to the United States in terms of these young citizens about to share the responsibilities of the nation? Three students and the director of student affairs at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay will discuss the subject Sunday and Monday mornings on the WLUK-TV (Channel 11) "Campus Report" program. The weekly show is aired at 10:30 a.m. Mondays and 9 a.m. Mondays.

Students on the panel are Jeanne McIntyre, Kenneth Hogg and Scott Knapp. Dr. Donald Makuen, of the University staff, will join the student trio. Tom Pearl of Channel 11 will narrate the show.

High spots of the program: The speakers will cite the campuses of the state university in Madison and Columbia University in the heart of New York City; they will report on steps being taken at the UW-Green Bay to meet student needs which recent disorders on other campuses have brought into focus.

Reports are that UW-Green Bay is planning with action. The idea is to establish advisory committees in all areas of university life and to involve the students themselves in university decision making in these areas.

The university also plans to establish community programs. The idea behind this decision is to bring to the people of the Bay what the school and Sunday and Monday mornings any major plans of interest to the public at large.

Jingo heartily agrees with this last idea. After all, the new UW at Green Bay belongs to all the people of this area. Maybe if they know what's going on, if Jeanne McIntyre, Kenneth Hogg and Scott Knapp, Dr. Donald ideas, they'll discover it's where they want their children to go to school.

Henry Fonda Plays the Father of 10 children who marries the mother of eight, Lucille Ball, in the movie "Yours, Mine and Ours" currently showing at the Viking Theater. The film in color also co-stars Van Johnson as a Navy pal of Fonda and Tom Bosley, who plays the harried family doctor.

Jingo believes that all bright youngsters should have a shot at college and one of the best ways for this idea to grow is to first sow the seeds.

19 Youngsters Stir Things Up In New Movie

Veteran Actors Play Parents in Comedy 'Yours, Mine, Ours'

Take a double batch of youngsters who can steal a scene with ease, mix well with such talented veterans as Lucille Ball and Henry Fonda and the result is a fun-filled, delightful mish-mash sort of movie called "Yours, Mine, Ours."

The movie opened Wednesday to two substantial crowds of moviegoers who came out in spite of the rain. The crowds helped the show immensely because laughter is contagious. This is a movie that's necessarily full of giggles, chuckles and laughs when an improbable courtship unfolds and becomes an equally improbable marriage that starts out with a co-family of 18 children!

It's as the Navy man, widower-father of 10 Fonda says to his pretty Navy nurse date Lucille Ball, widowed mother of eight, "It's ridiculous!" And the respective families of youngsters don't help the situation much either when the off-again, on-again romance finally turns into a serious romance.

Really Happened
Yet the movie is based on a true story that was much publicized at the time. Although the movie plot has been developed for comedy emphasis, it follows the true story of the northern California Beardsley family to whom it happened.

In the beginning of the movie, the actions, problems of the two families are cleverly delineated by production shots that show first one family, then the other in a sort of "meanwhile back at the ranch" fashion. After the wedding, (with each family of kids lined up hostilely on opposite sides) the family moves into an old Victorian house (large with four bathrooms) and the Beardsley-North togetherness starts out in ship-shape Navy order and regulation.

Van Johnson plays the small but important role of Navy buddy of both grown-ups. He serves as the catalyst to the romance. Tom Bosley plays the bewildered doctor to the new family. Both tell secrets that help the plot along and change family attitudes.

The movie is filled with domestic crises - as anyone can imagine with an oversized

Full of Situations
There's one of the North young fry who has to stay after school and write his "legal" name on the blackboard after he insisted he was now a Beardsley. There's the too-serious romance of teen-ager Coleman, who finally has a frank discussion of sex with her stepfather as he rushes around preparing to take his wife to the hospital for the arrival of "ours" in the family. There's Mike Beardsley, who gets his service call and finds an ally in his stepmother in choosing the Marines instead of Navy. There also are everyday scenes that bring out the fantastic management of such a huge family. There's the shopping, cooking, doing the dishes and the laundry. And then there's the Christmas scene that starts out in hectic confusion and ends with the family singing Christmas carols.

It's a family movie full of situations, humor and warmth, all based on the domestic scene. Actually, it's a moral tale with refreshing bits of wisdom tucked into the plot in between the funny spots. - Lillian Mackesy.

Debate Possible At Convention

WASHINGTON (AP) - A unique situation in this politically unique year could pit the two leading Democratic presidential contenders in a tradition-shattering National Convention debate.

The situation arises because both Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy are convention delegates from their home state of Minnesota.

"If you're a delegate," Humphrey said at a National Press Club appearance recently, "you can speak, you can testify you can get those television cameras on you, you can get out and parade around, get signs and pack the gallery."

Traditionally presidential candidates have not spoken to a convention except to withdraw or accept nomination. In fact, it's considered bad form to even be seen on the floor.

Underground Films Shown Outdoors in Honolulu Shell

HONOLULU (AP) - Honolulu had its first underground film festival outdoors.

Billed as the world's first outdoor underground film festival, the event was held at the Waikiki Shell in Honolulu because, the sponsors said, "there was no place underground big enough."

The festival included films by Andy Warhol, Lenny Lipton, Robert Nelson and others. Sponsors intended to show Warhol's "The Nude Restaurant," but an official of the City Department of Auditoriums, which manages the shell, said the film went beyond the bounds of good taste and banned it.

However, the sponsors said they plan to eventually show the film at a private location.

Koehring Company Purchases Jersey Firm

Koehring Co., Milwaukee, which earlier this year purchased Fox River Tractor Co. of Appleton, has announced the acquisition of Faeco Machine Co., Inc., Paterson, N. J., for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Faeco makes blown plastic film machinery and related equipment. It will become part of Koehring's Prodex division in Ford, N. J. This is the eighth Koehring purchase since June 30, 1967.

Appleton Youth Gets Probation on Gun Law Charge

Martin Kamrath, 20, 110 W. Harris St., who earlier pleaded guilty of carrying a concealed and dangerous weapon into an Appleton restaurant early the morning of June 4, was placed on one year probation Monday afternoon in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Detectives arrested Kamrath after investigating a complaint that he was in Koepke's Restaurant with a loaded .22 caliber pistol.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer first sentenced Kamrath to six months in jail, but then stayed imposition of sentence and ordered probation to the State Department of Health and Social Services. Schaefer ordered the police department to hold the gun until a final determination is made. Kamrath is not to possess the gun during the period of his probation.

Pancreatitis May Bring Recurrent Back Pains

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about pancreatitis. I had severe pains and went into the emergency department at the hospital, thinking I had a heart attack.

After tests I was told it was a pancreas attack. After five months I am still weak and tire easily and still have a lot of back pain. I am on a strict diet. What causes an attack and how can I prevent another? I do not drink alcohol. — W.K.L.

It is quite understandable that you would suspect a heart attack. The pain is in the upper abdomen. Of varying severity, it radiates to the back and left of center.

An electrocardiogram is important, immediately, to rule out an actual heart attack. Then chemical tests are used to identify the trouble in the pancreas more exactly.

The pancreas, which is an organ about five inches long, serves two main purposes. One is to produce insulin, which goes into the blood stream. The other is to produce a variety of enzymes which are important in digestion and go through a duct into the intestine. It is this latter which is involved in attacks of pancreatitis.

While excessive alcohol is a common cause of pancreatitis, it is by no means the only one. Gall bladder disease, whether infection or stones, also is an important cause of pancreatitis.

Or the duct from the pancreas to intestine may be obstructed by stones, swelling, infection, or other means.

In any event, removal of the gall bladder, if it is diseased, usually ends recurrent attacks of pancreatitis. In other cases of relapsing pancreatitis, the cause very often is traced to excessive alcohol or meals which are unduly high in fat.

In a good many cases which (from your description) are like yours, prevention of further attacks is best encouraged by proper diet (low in fat and smaller meals) and judicious use of medication to reduce the activity of the pancreas. Some physicians think the amount of coffee should be curtailed.

There are more severe types of pancreatitis involving cysts, abscesses, or tumors, in which cases surgery may be required.

Dear Dr. Molner: Lately my husband has gotten the idea that a woman must douche every night to be clean. It seems to me I read somewhere that douching too often kills off harmless bacteria which actually aid in preventing minor infections and that a woman has special glands working to cleanse. How frequently is it necessary to douche? Can douching every night lessen my chances to conceive?—J.A.

Some other questions of like nature have recently arrived. I repeat what I have said before: Douching is not necessary unless your physician recommends it for medical purposes. Too frequent douching can, indeed, lead to irritation, which, in turn, might interfere in some cases with conception.

The best rule is simply: Do not douche unless your doctor orders it for some particular purpose.

Shelved Track Stars To Get Second Chance

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sixteen American athletes with either injuries or illness too severe to permit them to compete this weekend in the U.S. Olympic trials will get another chance to make the team.

World mile record holder Jim Ryun and world long jump record holder Ralph Boston are among those who will be allowed to compete at South Lake Tahoe during the training week of Sept. 9-17. The action came as no surprise.

A subcommittee of U.S. track and field officials voted Wednesday on petitions submitted by athletes.

Ryun contracted a mild case of mononucleosis last month and has since been recuperating in Arizona.

Boston told the group he might be able to compete at the Los Angeles Coliseum this Saturday and Sunday in the trials but was granted permission to miss if he isn't up to it. He is a two-time Olympian.

Other name trackmen who got free passes for the meet are high hurdlers Richmond Flowers and Willie Davenport, middle distance runners Preston Davis, Jere Van Dyke and Ron Kutschinski and world pole vault record holder Paul Wilson. Also allowed to miss this weekend's festivities are former Olympic champion Billy Mills, distance runner Ken Moore, triple jumper Aaron Hopkins, sprinters Willie Turner and Oliver Ford, shot putter Neal Steinbauer, walker Larry Walker and decathlon ace Dave Thoreson.

Expansion of Bays' Museum Completed

GREEN BAY — The Packer Hall of Fame Museum at the Brown County Arena has completed its expansion project and is now located on two levels.

The expansion, which adds 8,000 square feet, has enabled Visitor and Convention Bureau officials to install two movie theaters and three color slide projectors on the upper concourse.

One theater will feature the Packers of old and the other will have more recent films such as the 1967 Super Bowl, 1967 NFL Championship Game, and the 1967 Packer Highlights.

The Hall of Fame now occupies more than 20,000 square feet of exhibit area.

Landry, Beban to Guide Attacks East-West Grid Clash on TV Friday

By RON SPEER

ATLANTA (AP) — Last fall's college football standouts battle Friday night in the eighth annual Coaches All-America game which either kicks off the 1968 season or wraps up the 1967 campaign.

The nationally televised duel matches quarterback Gary Beban of UCLA, the heralded Heisman Trophy winner, against Greg Landry of Massachusetts.

Beban, who has been erratic in practice, will direct the West while Landry will quarterback the East.

West Coach Dee Andros of Oregon and East Coach John Pont of Indiana both have predicted an explosive game, although last year's scrap ended in a 12-9 conquest for the East.

This year's game may be another low-scoring show, with both teams boasting top defensive players.

The East's defense will be led by end Kevin Hardy of Notre Dame, tackle Claude Humphrey of Tennessee A&I, linebacker D. D. Lewis of Mississippi State and halfback Frank Loria of Virginia Tech.

Carr at Linebacker

Heading up the West's defense will be tackle Wayne Meyland of Nebraska, guard Granville Liggins of Oklahoma, linebacker Fred Carr of Texas El Paso and halfback Dick Anderson of Colorado.

"We've got some great athletes," said Andros, who plans to wear plain black shoes on the field because he forgot to bring the colorful orange and black footgear he wears while coaching Oregon.

The West, which trails in the series 4-3, has some offensive standouts including pass-catching whiz Rick Eber of Tulsa, explosive halfback Max Anderson of Arizona State and long-range kicker Jerry De Poyster of Wyoming.

Andros admitted, however, that he doesn't have a block-busting runner with the power of the East's Larry Csonka, 235-pound Syracuse fullback.

"Csonka is all everybody said he was," said Pont, who also can call on Tennessee halfback Walter Chadwick and Tule's Bobby Dubon for running assignments.

Southern Receiver

East passes probably will be aimed at Dennis Homan, elusive Alabama receiver, and Auburn's Freddie Hyatt.

One of the best individual battles in the game will match Tennessee center Bob Johnson, a bulwark of the East line, against Liggins.

The duel between the two standouts was a highlight of last January's Orange Bowl game, won by Oklahoma.

"I think there will be a lot of individual battles out there," Pont said. "A great many of these boys have played each other before and want to go at it again."

Both Pont and Andros indicated they would give all 30 members of each squad a chance to play, because temperatures probably will be in the low 80s.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. CDT, with ABC televising the game.

New London's Legion Team Tops Appleton

Graff Collects 4 Of the 8 Hits Given by Baehman

Dave Moriarty cracked three hits and teammates Greg Wing and Bill Rieckmann had two apiece in leading New London to a 5-1 victory over Appleton in an American Legion game at Goodland Field Tuesday night.

New London now owns a 4-2 mark in the Central Division of the Valley Legion League. Appleton is 4-3.

The winning pitcher was Gary Baehman, who scattered eight Appleton hits — four of them by Brad Graff. Lance Voelz worked the first eight innings for Appleton and absorbed the loss.

New London got off to a 1-0 edge in the top of the first on singles by Wing and Moriarty and a fielder's choice. However, Appleton came right back with a run of its own on Graff's triple and an error on Don Warner's infield grounder.

The winners then picked up the go-ahead run in the fourth on Bill Rieckmann's single that scored Moriarty. New London added two more in the sixth on doubles by John Kepernick and Rieckmann, and still another insurance run in the ninth.

Rose Knocks 1000th Hit Abernathy Not Satisfied With Pitching Despite Getting Save

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ace relief specialist Ted Abernathy of the Reds performed his familiar role as a saver against the New York Mets Wednesday night.

Cincinnati outlasted New York 7-6 as Abernathy put down a ninth-inning Mets' rally but he wasn't too happy with his pitching.

"I'm pitching better, but I need better control," Abernathy said.

"I've been getting my pitches too high and what I need is my sinker working to get the ball hit on the ground."

It was the sixth time this season the 35-year-old right-hander has preserved victories and gained credit for saves.

The Mets, trailing 7-3 in the ninth, rallied against starter Jim Maloney. Abernathy was summoned from the bullpen and gave up two runs before getting out of the jam. He allowed a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly, and then retired Cleon Jones' on a game-ending force play.

Maloney, 8-4, yielded nine of the Mets' 11 hits and struck out seven.

Cincinnati knocked loser Dick Selma, 8-3, for six runs and eight hits in 4 1-3 innings and got four more hits off two relievers.

Reds' All-Star Pete Rose, who connected for the 1,000th hit of his major league career in the third, commented on his slight batting slump in recent games:

"When you approach any kind of a goal you get a little anxious and I had a touch of the flu over the weekend — but I'm not making any excuses. I think I got my swing back."

Reds' center fielder Vada Pinson left the game in the sixth inning when he pulled a hamstring tendon but physicians said the injury shouldn't sideline him.

It was not all dismal for the Mets, who again failed to reach the .500 mark. Manager Gil Hodges was pleased with the three hits by first baseman Ed Kranepool, who had been benched because of a batting slump.

Cincinnati won two of the three-game series with the Mets and went into sixth place in the National League standings.

Revise Slate For District Baseball Meet

MENASHA — In order to give the Menasha ball park an extra half day to dry out, several changes have been made in the weekend schedule in the Fox Valley district semi-pro baseball tournament.

The Menasha Macs and Reedsville will clash in the final quarter-final test at 7 p.m. Saturday. The game, rained out last Sunday night, had been listed as an afternoon affair.

Semi-final games will be played Sunday night, instead of Saturday, and the third place and championship affairs on Monday, instead of Sunday.

Clintonville and Garsow's will vie in Sunday's 6 p.m. semi-final and the Menasha-Reedsville victor will duel Two Rivers at 8.

Lorraine Struck Rolls 561 Series

Lorraine Struck blasted a 200 game and 561 series to set the pace in the Bargeue League at Sabre Lanes Wednesday night.

In Tuesday night action, Fred Rey topped the Cookout League with a 243 game and Arlene Huebner led the women with a 515 series.

The Guns and Butter Surtax

There is nothing very pleasant about the prospect of paying more in federal income taxes because of the 10 per cent surtax which was finally approved by Congress, nor was it very pleasant for Congress to approve it less than five months before an election. But the evidence of the need for the surtax and for the companion cut in spending was overwhelming.

Without the added taxation and spending reductions, the budget deficit for this fiscal year would have been at least $23 billion. This would have fed inflation to a degree which cannot be risked. As part of this chain reaction, the United States balance of payments deficit in international trade would have been even more critical and the strength of the dollar in international trade, already under attack, would have been in even more serious trouble.

The responsibility for the nation getting into this fix, in large part, must be accepted by the Johnson administration. Faced with a deep division in the nation over the war in Vietnam, the administration stuck to the line that there could be both guns and butter after there was ample evidence that this was not possible.

The crisis required an expenditure reduction or the risk would have been that the same level of budget deficit would have remained after use of the fresh revenues from the surtax. That this was accomplished and accomplished at a level which the President once said was unacceptable is a tribute to the hard bargaining of congressmen who tied the two proposals together and refused to budge. Chief among them was Rep. John Byrnes of Green Bay, ranking member for his party on the House Ways and Means Committee, which deals with taxation.

The bill requires a $10 billion cut in future appropriations and a $6 billion cut in spending. And the President, next January, is required to recommend $8 billion in cuts from appropriations carried over from previous years.

The bill establishes sort of a partnership between Congress and the President for seeing to it that the budget cuts are made, which is going to leave plenty of dangers from politics in the coming months. There will be statements that the cuts are impossible without harming vital social programs. Those who defended the budget reductions have completed only half their task. They now must show that it can be done by eliminating waste and rescheduling programs which can be delayed.

Two important amendments are part of the bill. One will put off the freeze called for on aid to dependent children welfare payments called for in a Social Security bill last year. The other will end the tax-free status on bond issues of less than $1 million sold by local and state governments to lure new industries.

Both amendments are in order. The freeze had a worthy objective of finding employment for mothers receiving such aid, but the plan to freeze a ratio of children under the program to total population of each state failed to recognize migration to cities or downtowns in the economy of localities. The industrial bonds amendment — also championed by Rep. Byrnes — will in great part end an unfair advantage of some states in industrial development, will provide a new source of federal revenue, and could help reduce interest costs on legitimate governmental public works bond issues, driven upward from the competition of the industrial bonds.

The surtax will not be pleasant. Perhaps the nation as a whole shares the administration's responsibility for the tardy enactment of the tax because of a reluctance to recognize the scope of the Vietnam war. But while there is deep division over the war and while there now is an attempt to bring it to an honorable settlement, there can be no pretending that its massive costs need not be paid.

De Gaulle's Victory

Whatever we may think of President Charles de Gaulle's policies for France and especially his relations with the United States, we must continue to hold a grudging respect and admiration for the aging French leader. Once again he has challenged his opponents in France and once again he has won a considerable victory.

Certainly the riots in university towns and the almost complete nationwide strike more than a month ago prompted much of the backing of President de Gaulle, especially in the conservative rural areas and the small towns. The immobilization of almost every service in France was anarchy and the ordinary French people were frightened by it. This fear, rather than confidence in the proposed reforms in education, wages and transportation, brought out the heavy vote for members of De Gaulle's party and most of the leaders in the present government.

When the violence first erupted and proved to be so widespread, President de Gaulle proposed a national referendum and promised to resign if the majority did not approve of his policies. But more careful thinking brought about the national elections instead. A majority of the popular vote might well be extremely difficult to achieve; Gaullists could continue to control the national assembly with as little as their present 33 per cent. But they have done even better and recouped the losses of earlier national elections.

The voters not only showed themselves firmly behind Gaullist candidates; they repudiated both the Communists and the Leftist Federation. And even former Premier Pierre Mendes-France placed second in his own district and was forced into a run-off with the less well known Gaullist candidate.

After run-off elections in another week, President de Gaulle will have the opportunity to put his reforms into practice. Unfortunately the vote may be interpreted by some members of his government at least as a vote of confidence in past policies of the De Gaulle regime rather than support for proposed reforms or fear of anarchy. Failure in the next few weeks to enact reforms would be a serious mistake. For whatever may have been the aims of some of the more radical demonstrators, the grievances were very real. Grievances ignored could once again bring France to the brink of open rebellion.

classroom also, and especially the spirited and candid challenging and questioning by the students.

Prof. Salter's first love in the study of American politicians and their parties was the big city machine that was characteristic of urban politics when he was training for his teaching career.

We remember as if we had listened yesterday to his lively lectures on big city bossism, as exemplified by Vane of Philadelphia and others who represented a system that has become virtually extinct in the years since. The major Salter published work was entitled "Boss Rule," and we suspect that he was sometimes mildly frustrated because when he made Wisconsin his home he could not draw upon home grown examples. The party boss of the classical tradition has not been a part of our Wisconsin politics, at least during Prof. Salter's teaching career.

Jack Salter, as his graduate students affectionately called him with his encouragement, was a dedicated, creative and successful teacher, and generations of former students now living in every locality of Wisconsin will regret that his frail figure and gentle voice will no longer be seen and heard in the classrooms at Madison.

AFS Students Sad At Leaving Appleton

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

On behalf of all the five A.F.S. students — Nazy Mel-ekyazdi, Lynn Bundy, Kevin Chomse, Juan Toselli, and myself I would like to thank the people of Appleton for making this school year a wonderful one for us.

It is with mixed feelings we turn homeward, because Appleton has come to mean as much as our own countries to us. From the very beginning we were so well accepted, and you did not hesitate a moment to make us a part of Appleton. Wherever we went we were so assured of a warm and a hearty reception.

We cannot put into words our gratitude and appreciation for all you have done on our account. We shall always remember you where ever we go.

Thanking you again,

Taylor Writes

Student Anarchy Here, Abroad
Organized, Directed From Moscow

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

Yugoslav Czech, etc., students are making it rough for their Iron Curtain rulers. This is the best of good news, and dependable. But there is also a second side — the export side — to the Soviet Union's student operations that is revving up many a hit-man on our own campuses here.

We're being brainwashed whenever we are told that the thrust is not organized Stokely Carmichael, leaving Africa after visiting Castro's Cuba and North Vietnam, said in Dar es Salaam "I am going back to hell — the United States." He was speaking the export language.

The so-called International Union of Students, based in Prague and financed by Moscow, has been supporting university anarchists throughout the free world. Behind the scenes a Pole, Vlod Konarski, supervised the British thrust. The vehicle is the militant Radical Student Alliance in London.

Five of its 20 councilmen are Communists. Within weeks after Konarski set this up, violence broke out at the London School of Economics. Since then the universities of Manchester, Essex, Leicester, East Anglia and Sussex have been in nearly continuous anarchistic turmoil.

Two other International Union of Students subdivisions in England are supervised by Jean Bougareau, a Frenchman, and Martin Abeln, who is Dutch. Both came to Britain expressly for the Grosvenor Square student riots at the American Embassy in protest to the Vietnam war.

A fourth IUS subdivision, which Prague calls locally the International Movement, is hitting Eire. The supervisor is Hardial Sinh Bains, a naturalized Canadian born in India.

It is based at Trinity College, Dublin. It represents only about 30 of Trinity's 3,500 undergraduates and these are almost entirely British, African or Asian. And we have seen it here — the shambles at our Columbia University have been constantly in the headlines of the world.

A Bains sidekick is Ralph Schoenman, 32, chief director and student shepherd of the Bertrand Russell Peace Foundation, who arranged the mock trial of President Johnson in Stockholm. He has been held in Montjoy Prison, Dublin. Britain banned Schoenman but Scotland Yard caught him while allegedly trying to reach London by flying first to Rome where Italian student riots have been boiling. Permit me to tell you that, to our dismay, Schoenman had an American passport.

This column several times has discussed Berlin's Rudolf Dutschke ("Red Rudi"), Europe's leading student revolutionary before he was shot and wounded on April 11, the event that touched off the West German riots. And subsequently France's equivalent, Daniel Cohn-Bendit ("Before you can build you must destroy"), burst into the world news in the de Gaulle crisis.

This man is not even French. He's German. France's educational system is antiquated and is open to much criticism. But Cohn-Bendit's basic purpose is not reform. It is anarchy.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has testified before a Senate subcommittee that 6,000 to 8,000 African students are in Communist bloc countries and that more than 10 hours a day of Communist broadcasts (including a steady stream from Castro's Cuba) are beamed exclusively to Africa.

In the late Lenin era the leading Soviet Marxist scholar was D. B. Raizanov, head of the Marx-Engels Institute in Moscow. Raizanov usually is credited with founding the Lenin School of Political Warfare which has been operating under cover in Moscow for more than 40 years. Along with the International Union of Students in Prague it functions likewise from Leipzig, East Germany. And Western intelligence services designate this total combination as "Agitprop."

In addition to its student push in Europe, the Middle East, Latin America and the United States, "Agitprop" now runs African student terrorist training centers in Budapest and Warsaw and in Bernau and Bautzen, East Germany. Along with these, Moscow's Patrice Lumumba University alone has revved up and sent back to their African homelands more than 1,000 trained student insurrectionists in the past six months.

The exported anarchists are entrenched in the colleges all the way from Morocco on the Atlantic clear down to the border of South Africa. Anarchy is their purpose, and they create this where the anti-Communists often outnumber them 100 to 1.

Organized fear is their university tool here. And we are hopelessly brainwashed if — incredibly — we still refuse to wake up.

LaFollette, Dalton
Imbroglio Certain
To be Political Issue

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The LaFollette-Dalton-Meister imbroglio is one of those unpredictable episodes that so often occur in politics that the possibilities give political campaign managers nightmares.

It is the kind of break for

the opposing political party and candidates for which they pray, if silently, at the start of a campaign season.

No doubt there will be explanations and alternative explanations, charges and countercharges. It may be that all of the pertinent details may never be known, given the extreme sensitivity of the apparent issue of the integrity of the state law enforcement machinery.

IS POLITICAL ISSUE

What is clear, however, beyond serious doubt, is that the firing of the state chief criminal investigator by Attorney General LaFollette as a result of his investigation of a Milwaukee bistro partly owned by a powerful and noisy Milwaukee politician, to that politician's unalloyed satisfaction, has provided one of the major local political issues of the year.

If there was any dispute about the volatility of the incident, it should have been removed by the speed with which Republican candidates rushed to their mimeograph machines to send out press releases about their viewing LaFollette's action with alarm.

The impact of the incident could also be judged by the blaring headlines, and the quiet smiles on the faces of men and women in the office of Gov. Knowles, who know that Attorney General LaFollette as presumptive nominee of the Democrats for governor will be the foe upon whose defeat their fortunes depend in the fall elections.

Subsequent events will doubtless elucidate the charge by LeRoy Dalton that he was dismissed as head of the criminal investigation bureau by the attorney general because of pressure from Howard Meister, a renking Milwaukee politician with varied interests, including part ownership in the tavern that Dalton had ordered investigated. But it is on the record that Dalton and Meister have been feuding for months.

Meister had publicly called for Dalton's discharge. After another recent prosecution (in which he was acquitted because the state's chief witness could not appear because of illness.) Meister also uttered a blast against the law enforcement officer that some careful editors would not publish because it appeared libelous. Dalton, a trained lawyer praised for his competence by several superiors by whom he has been employed, thought it was slanderous and thereupon started a civil suit against Meister.

CLASH WAS INEVITABLE

The clash between the Milwaukee politician and the ranking officer in the state criminal investigation bureau was probably inevitable. Meister is a well-to-do, impetuous, proud man who enjoys the appearance of power and association with the powerful. Dalton is a quiet but determined man who has a kind of crusader's zeal to fight and punish wrongdoing.

The mystery is why the attorney general, at this crucial period of his career, did not anticipate the uproar his action would inevitably inspire, and the handy issue it would hand his eager opposition, whatever subsequent details may show about the origin or justification of the incident.

Mr. LaFollette appears to say that he dismissed Dalton from his job and consigned him to outer darkness in a remote and innocuous position because he did not follow orders to clear all investigations touching upon Meister and his affairs with himself as the head of the attorney general's office.

SERIOUS CHARGE MADE

That sounds in the first place like a humiliating requirement upon a man of Dalton's rank, service, experience and salary. It sounds also like a charge of insubordination, however, which ought to be sufficient grounds for Dalton's outright dismissal under the civil service code. But such dismissal has not been attempted.

The question remains whether Mr. LaFollette will be able to recruit a successor criminal investigation chief, in these demanding times, in view of the Dalton case.

Occupy Harris Today

Why some couples give good parties and others do not has more to do with their unconscious state of mind than with guests or refreshments or entertainment or any other physical factor; for it is anxiety, rigidity and fussing in direct proportion to the number of people in the household.

Why do politicians make rash, and inconsistent, promises to different segments of the electorate? Because they know that people hear only what they want to hear, and tune out what they are not interested in.

Most tyrannies are the result of frustrations, accidental or otherwise: If Hitler had been a successful painter, there would have been no putsch; if Napoleon had been accepted by the Russian army in 1799 (which refused to give him the rank of major), there would have been no Austerlitz, and no Waterloo.

The "second hand" in a clock is much more likely to be a little off than the minute hand or hour hand — and we might not be quite so critical of "ephemeral" journalism if we look upon it as the second hand, with history as the minute hand, and philosophy as the hour hand — thus, journalism needs regular correction by history, and history needs constant interpretation by philosophy, if any are to make sense.

Many people have a sadly deficient idea of "maturity" — they imagine that adulthood constitutes a renunciation of childhood, when actually it must include and accept the good (and easily lost) values of childhood, and build upon them.

Reformers who want to use the schools primarily to correct injustices, and only secondarily to educate children, will find that under such conditions the schools will be able to do neither.

Pioneer Hotel of 1850 Moved

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for July 4, 1868.

Last week the old "Crescent hotel" on the corner of College Avenue and Morrison Street was placed on rollers and moved in two sections — one located near Glines Wagon Shop, on Edwards Street (now Washington Street), the other north on Morrison Street.

We understand this building was erected in the Spring of 1850, by W. S. Warner, Esq., and occupied by him as a hotel. This was at a time when the trees had to be cut away for a building site. In those days gone, many a stranger found rest and refreshment 'neath its roof and around its substantial board, and whiled away the evenings around the office stove, chatting of prospective lots in the then primitive place.

But the old landmarks must give way to the demand of the times, and in its place will be erected a more modern and extensive building by Col. (Henry) Blood, the popular host of the "Johnston House."

(Editorial note: Jon F. Johnston, first village president, became the proprietor of the old Crescent House and in 1860 when the early Pioneer Society met there with owner W. S. Warner present, the society voted unanimously to change the name to Johnston House in honor of the first official, first postmaster, and the man whose cabin was the first hotel, church and post office before there even was a village. This rude home stood on the present Johnston Street block, on what was Lot 2 of that block.)

Seek 'United Front' For Major Leagues

NEW YORK (AP) -- Baseball's executive council, heading Commissioner William D. Eckert's call for a "united front," has recommended uniform scheduling and division play next year when the major leagues expand to 12 teams apiece.

Following a meeting in New York Wednesday, the five-man executive council, headed by the commissioner, unanimously recommended that the National League adopt a two-division setup and the American League retain the present 162-game schedule.

The two leagues will act on the recommendations in Houston July 10, the day after the All-Star Game in the Astrodome.

The American League has announced it will go to two divisions of six teams each and will cut its schedule to 156 games followed by a playoff between division champions, with the winner advancing to the World Series.

Granted Franchises

Last month, the National League granted 1969 franchises to Montreal and San Diego, then later announced it would stay with one division and a 162-game schedule.

"I have always advocated that the two leagues move forward jointly and present a united front with the common aim—what is best for the baseball public," Eckert said in calling for an end to inter-league differences over expansion.

Fears had been expressed that the excitement created by an American League pennant playoff between division champs would detract from the prestige of a National League pennant race in September.

Unanimous approval of the National League club owners is necessary for a switch to two divisions.

Under the American League's divisional split Kansas City and Seattle, the new clubs, will play in the Western Division along with Chicago, Minnesota, California and Oakland. Boston, New York, Washington, Baltimore, Cleveland and Detroit will be in the Eastern Division.

Gibson Thinks About Victory Before Shutout

runs in the first, fourth and eighth innings. Gibson even doubled in the fourth to help build a run.

Find Yourself Behind

"You can get yourself preoccupied with shutouts and pretty soon you find yourself behind," Gibson warned. "But I think anybody thinks about a shutout in the sixth or seventh if he's pitching good."

Then he laughed. "The very first thing you think about is a no-hitter."

Gibson gave up four hits. But nobody made it as far as second. And Gibson didn't walk a man in his sixth straight victory. That, he feels, is the important thing about his excellent pitching this year.

"I had good control during the whole streak," Gibson said. "In fact, I've had better control this whole year."

Gibson's next start probably will be Monday against record-holding Drysdale.

Is Gibson looking forward to it?

"I'm not looking forward to a shutout," Gibson smiled. "I'm looking forward to a win. I only pitched once against him this year and he beat me 1-0."

But the hard thing for Gibson to do is convince people he isn't chasing records.

"I really don't care about it," Gibson declared. "If you set a record fine, but I don't care."

Englishman First to Finish Trans-Atlantic Yacht Race

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Schoolteacher Geoffrey Williams of England sailed the Sir Thomas Lipton into Newport early today and became the first across the finish line in the trans-Atlantic single-handed yacht race from Plymouth, England.

Williams looked none the worse for wear as he waved and joked with well-wishers.

"I feel fine," he told those aboard the eight boats that came out to meet the 57-foot ketch at the end of the long voyage.

The 25-year-old Williams, who left Plymouth June 1 as part of a 35-yacht fleet, passed the finish line at Brenton Reef Tower at 2:30 a.m. to post an unofficial time of 26 days, 20 hours and 30 minutes. This compared with the 27 days, 23 hours and 57 minutes clocked by French Navy Lt. Eric Tabarly in the last such race in 1964.

There was some question about the course Williams took near the end of the trip, however, and it was not immediately known whether he would be declared the official winner.

A member of the race committee said Williams had sailed between Nantucket Light and Nantucket Island whereas the amended instructions to the racers told them to sail south of Nantucket Light.

The distance of the race on the straight line is about 3,000 miles, but Williams said he logged close to 4,000 miles in all.

Williams said he believed the 50-foot ketch Voortrekker, sailed by Bruce Dalling of South Africa, was the next boat behind him. He estimated it was 80 or 90 miles back.

Shawano Wins Over Manawa

SHAWANO — Shortstop Stu Druckrey cracked three hits, including a homer and a double, to lead Shawano (3-3) to a 17-6 win over Manawa (1-6) in a Central Division, Fox Valley Legion League game Tuesday night. The game was cut to six innings by rain.

After tying the score, at 2-2, in the bottom of the first, Shawano took the lead with a run in the third frame, then put the game out of reach with five in the fourth, two in the fifth, and seven more in the sixth.

Jerry Buchholz got the credit for the win and John Hoffman took the loss.

USLTA One Opposing Doubtful if Pros Will Get OKay to Play in Davis Cup

By GEOFFREY MILLER

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Australian tennis officials have just a week to try to persuade other countries that professionals should be allowed to play in the Davis Cup—and the odds are stacked against them.

Tennis sources at Wimbledon, where pros and amateurs are competing together for the first time, said most delegates are likely to vote against the plan when the Davis Cup committee meets in London next Thursday.

Bob Kelleher, president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, dropped a broad hint that he will not be supporting the Australians.

"We are not against it in principle, but we don't think the time is ripe to bring in the pros," Kelleher said.

Heads Delegation Bill Edwards, president of the Australian Lawn Tennis Association, is expected to arrive next Monday to head his country's delegation.

Australia, winner of the Davis Cup eight times in the last nine years, has changed its opinion after years of bitter opposition to having pros in the tournament.

"Now that open tennis has arrived, we might as well try to make it work by making a real go of it and extending it to the Davis Cup," an ALTA spokesman was quoted as saying recently.

At Wimbledon 79 players—some acknowledged pros, others ranked as amateurs—are playing for prize money.

Rain continued to spoil the first open Wimbledon tournament Wednesday. Play was restricted to 3½ hours and attendances over the first three days now show a net drop of about 7,000 compared with last year.

It has rained all three days. Wednesday's big duel was between two Americans, pro Dennis Ralston of Los Angeles and amateur Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex. Ralston won 6-3, 6-7, 6-3, 13-11 after Richey had been foot-faulted to drop service in the 23rd game of the last set.

Amateur giant-killer Herb FitzGibbon of Garden City, N.Y.—who on Tuesday knocked out Yugoslav pro Nikki Pilic—was eliminated by Britain's Mark Cox in another five-set cliff-hanger, 4-6, 6-3, 7-9, 9-7, 12-10.

Arthur Ashe, Richmond, Va., defeated Eduardo Zuleta, Ecuador, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3. Ken Fletcher, Australia, defeated Jim McManus, Berkeley, Calif., 6-4, 2-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Andres Gimeno (pro), Spain, defeated Bill Bowrey, Australia, 4-6, 4-6, 9-7, 6-3. Roy Emerson (pro), Australia, defeated Ion Tiriac, Romania, 5-7, 6-1, 6-3, 6-0.

Edison Mandarino, Brazil, defeated Jan Leschly, Denmark, 11-9, 10-8, 6-3. Mrs. Jennifer Hoad, Australia, defeated Lucia Bassi, Italy, 6-3, 6-4.

Dennis Ralston (pro), Los Angeles, defeated Cliff Richey, San Angelo, Tex., 6-3, 3-6, 7-9, 6-3, 13-11.

Mark Cox, Britain, defeated Herb FitzGibbon, Garden City, N.Y., 4-6, 6-3, 7-9, 9-7, 12-10.

Tom Edtelsen, Berkeley, Calif., defeated Geoff Buech, Britain, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3. Francisco Guzman, Ecuador, defeated Robert Lutz, Los Angeles, 11-13, 1-6, 8-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Nancy Richey, San Angelo, Tex., defeated Marjany Godwin, South Africa, 6-1, 6-3.

Cecilia Martinez, San Francisco, defeated Elena Subirats, Mexico, 6-8, 6-3, 6-4.

Desire for Tighter Security Backfires On Brewers' Selig

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Brewers President Alvin Selig, whose group is sponsoring 11 Chicago White Sox games in Milwaukee this season, has tightened security around the press box at County Stadium to make sure no unauthorized visitors get in.

The precaution backfired during the Sox-Twins game Monday night when the guard refused to let Selig enter the press box.

He had to call a local reporter to vouch for him.

Work has already begun and Dr. Holt said the project is scheduled for completion by Sept. 1. Tennessee meets Georgia here Sept. 14 in a nationally televised game.

Russia Urges Missile Talks

Readiness to Exchange Opinions Is Claimed by Foreign Minister

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko declared today that the Soviet government is "ready to exchange opinions on the curtailment of rocket systems—both offensive and defensive."

Addressing the Soviet Parliament, Gromyko did not elaborate on Soviet willingness to talk. But he apparently was referring to talks on nuclear missiles which the United States has been trying for 17 months to get started.

A spokesman said the U.S. State Department would likely comment later in the day.

The foreign minister repeated long-standing Soviet calls for general and complete disarmament—which has proved impossible to reach agreement on between East and West. He also called for an international convention to prohibit use of nuclear weapons—regarded by the West as impractical because of Soviet unwillingness to accept inspection safeguards.

U.S. Attempts

Because of this deadlock, the United States has been pressing the Soviet Union since January 1967 to hold talks on limiting Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles (ICBMs) and antiballistic missile (ABM) defenses.

Speaking to the United Nations on June 13, when it approved the nuclear nonproliferation treaty, President Johnson called on the United States and the Soviet Union to "lose no time in finding the way to scale down the nuclear arms race."

"We desire—yes, we urgently desire—to begin early discussions on the limitation of strategic offensive and defensive nuclear weapons systems," Johnson said.

Gromyko said that there was reason to believe American-Soviet relations can be improved, but "the United States must stop trying to turn the world inside out."

Avoid Collision

Referring to Johnson's Glassboro speech June 4, Gromyko said: "We see no reason for a collision as long as the United States respects our security and the security of other peoples."

In a 90-minute survey of Soviet foreign policy, Gromyko said "Soviet-U.S. relations are, as before, burdened by American foreign policy, especially Vietnam."

"It depends upon the government of the United States to what extent the possibilities of Soviet-U.S. relations will be put to use," the foreign minister declared.

Referring to Soviet-Chinese relations, Gromyko said: "We have done all to prevent a deterioration of relations between our two countries. But Peking is deaf to any initiative concerning the future of our relations."

Gromyko condemned Red Chinese propaganda and said it was "on a par with imperialist propaganda."

"The group of Mao Tse-tung continues to move toward sharpening of relations," Gromyko said.

Ships Harassment

He mentioned several instances of Chinese harassment of Soviet ships in the past year as examples.

Gromyko referred to rocket systems talks in the context of disarmament.

"One of the untouched problems in this field is the mutual limitation and later reduction of strategic weapons, both offensive and defensive, including antimissiles. The Soviet Union is ready for an exchange of opinions on this question."

'Far Less Rocky'

Johnson's Glassboro speech was an appeal for better Soviet-American relations. The road to peace, he said, "is far less rocky when the world's two greatest powers—the United States and the Soviet Union—are willing to travel part way together."

Initial Soviet reaction to this and other recent Johnson speeches on the subject had been chilly. Official Soviet commentators listed such obstacles to better relations as the Vietnam war, the Middle East situation and what is termed here "ideological subversion" of the Communist system by Western critics.

SST Funds Voted Down By Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee voted today to withhold any new funds for development of a supersonic airliner until an acceptable new design is worked out.

The committee turned down the Johnson administration's request for $223 million to carry on the SST project and further recommended that $30 million already advanced be returned to the Treasury.

If supported by Congress, the committee's action would mean at least a year's delay in the effort to build the huge transport, throwing the United States farther behind in its race with France and England, which are working jointly on a similar aircraft.

The $223 million cut was by far the largest in a bill approved by the committee calling for fiscal 1969 appropriations totaling $1.353 billion for the Department of Transportation.

The total is $332 million below administration budget requests and $179.8 million below the amount the department got in fiscal 1968.

Republicans Start Drive to Prevent Elevation of Fortas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighteen Senate Republicans have signed a petition opposing President Johnson's appointments to the Supreme Court, far short of the force they must marshal to block confirmation, but enough to make rough going if a filibuster develops.

Signers of the petition so far represent half the Senate's 36 GOP members. More could sign.

If Southern Democrats, loudly critical of the court's liberal rulings, should join the opposition, confirmation of Abe Fortas as chief justice and Homer Thornberry as an associate justice could be in jeopardy.

President Johnson Wednesday named Fortas to succeed the retiring Earl Warren and Thornberry to the vacancy created by Fortas' elevation. Fortas, fourth Jew ever to serve on the court, would be the first to lead it.

The President told a news conference he believes the Senate will confirm both and that he tested the political winds in talks with Democratic and Republican leaders, as well as key committee chairmen, before making the decision.

The GOP petition, circulated by Michigan's Robert P. Griffin and California's George Murphy, takes a stand against letting a "lame duck" president fill court vacancies.

Both Griffin and Murphy said it had no bearing on the personalities of Johnson's appointees. In fact the petition was drawn up before Johnson made public his appointment with the object of opposing Johnson's move to name anyone to the court.

Notably missing from the list of signers was Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

The GOP leader, also top Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee which will consider the appointments, said both Fortas and Thornberry are able men and he has "no personal reservations" about their appointments.

Sen Howard Baker Jr., however, the Tennessee Republican who is Dirksen's son-in-law and a signer of the petition, said "the mood of Congress and the country is in disagreement with the views of the Supreme Court on many issues."

"In this light," he added, "it is important that a new administration and the American people not be deprived of the right to fill these positions."

Khe Sanh Being Abandoned As Strategy Move by U.S.

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troops are abandoning and leveling the Khe Sanh combat base, freeing its defenders to join mobile strike forces combating increased enemy forces in South Vietnam's northernmost provinces.

The U.S. Command said abandonment of the base in the northwest corner of South Vietnam where U.S. Marines took more than 2,300 casualties in a 77-day siege last winter "is part of a new concept of mobile warfare being put into operation," below the demilitarized zone, said Brig. Gen. Winant Sidle, chief of information for the U.S. Command.

"Khe Sanh will be leveled bulldozed and the bunkers closed up," said Sidle. "It's already under way."

Blow Up Bunkers
U.S. Marine engineers have been blowing up bunkers at Khe Sanh and hauling out equipment for several days. But the announcement of the withdrawal was not made until today for security reasons.

Because of the importance U.S. officers publicly put on Khe Sanh while it was under siege for 77 days last winter, its abandonment is a propaganda setback for the United States. But veteran observers of the war don't think the American military position is reduced significantly.

The allies poured 5,500 Marines and 500 South Vietnamese troops into Khe Sanh's bunkers. Before the North Vietnamese pulled back and a 20,000-man relief force lifted the siege on April 6, more than 300 Americans were killed and more than 2,000 wounded. The U.S. Command said 2,605 North Vietnamese soldiers also were killed.

Not Worth Holding
Informed Vietnamese military sources said South Vietnam's generals advised Gen. William C. Westmoreland last winter that Khe Sanh—located in the northwest corner of South Vietnam—was not worth holding or fighting for. These sources said Westmoreland, who then was commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, ignored the advice because it contradicted his own strategy and because of the pressure of public opinion in the United States.

Sidle said Westmoreland had approved the plan to abandon Khe Sanh before he relinquished command of U.S. forces in South Vietnam to become Army chief of staff.

The headquarters of Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, who succeeded Westmoreland less than three weeks ago, said in a statement today that both the allied and enemy strength in the northernmost provinces has increased, the enemy has changed his tactics, and U.S. and South Vietnamese forces "must be used to the utmost to attack, intercept, reinforce or take whatever action is most appropriate to meet the enemy threats."

"Therefore, we have decided to continue the mobile posture we adopted in western Quang Tri Province with Operation Pegasus (which relieved Khe Sanh) in April. This decision makes the operation of the base at Khe Sanh unnecessary," the statement said.

The statement added that the enemy now has the equivalent of eight divisions in the five northern provinces, an increase of two since January, and "this gives him the capability of mounting several sizeable attacks concurrently."

"To meet this significantly increased threat, friendly forces must make maximum advantage of their superior firepower and mobility," the U.S. Command said.

A senior U.S. officer gave this explanation of the change in enemy tactics: "They don't have the pressure on Khe Sanh that they did at one time. Now they seem to be holding back, going for harassment and interdiction. There is not a great deal of contact. Whether they're building up or exactly what, it's difficult to say."

The Khe Sanh base, seven miles from the Laotian border, originally was established as a

Takes Stand In Opposing Extradition

LONDON (AP) — James Earl Ray, fighting extradition to the United States to stand trial for the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., asserted today he did not kill the Negro civil rights leader.

The prisoner—who is charged here under the alias of Raymond George Sneyd—took to witness stand in a surprise move and testified: "I have never met Dr. King. I have never had any kind of grudge against him."

An FBI expert, George Jacob Bonebrake, had testified that Ray's fingerprints were found on a rifle and binoculars discarded in a shop doorway after King was killed at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tenn., April 4.

"I found one (print) on the rifle and one on the sight and also on the binoculars," Bonebrake said. "I compared them for fingerprints of James Earl Ray in the Los Angeles police file. I found that they belonged to one and the same individual."

Ray's lawyer indicated he would seek to save Ray from extradition by contending that the assassination of King was a political crime.

Extradition Treaty
Under the U.S.-British extradition treaty, political grounds are a principal reason for granting asylum to anyone and barring extradition.

A hearing in historic Bow Street court was held under security precautions unprecedented in British judicial history. It took a dramatic turn after a lawyer representing the U.S. government gave evidence that Ray's fingerprints were found on the rifle suspected of killing King.

Ray was in the murky courtroom under heavy guard and heard a Scotland Yard detective testify that shortly after he was caught he collapsed in his cell moaning: "My God. I feel so trapped."

Political Involvement
The extent of King's involvement in American politics was raised by a British lawyer defending Ray.

Attorney Roger Frisby closely questioned an American witness in an effort to get statements about King's political involvement into the court record.

At one point Bonebrake admitted under questioning that there had been a certain amount of dislike for King in the United States.

Bonebrake said he found from the print on the rifle 14 characteristics the same as on the prints on file for Ray, a fugitive from the Missouri State Penitentiary.

Wallace Orders Aide to Seize Damaging Film

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC news film that had just been shot of him at a fund-raising dinner in Eutaw, Ala.

"The film was taken by force by a Wallace bodyguard while Secret Service men assigned to guard the candidate and state police looked on."

"Wallace did this because he didn't like the fact that we had filmed him shaking hands with Robert Shelton, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan."

The network said on a radio broadcast that the film was forcibly removed from one of its cameras Wednesday night at a fund-raising dinner in Eutaw, Ala.

The network said the Wallace bodyguard, who refused to identify himself, first asked the camera crew to give up the film. When the crew refused, ABC said, the third-party presidential candidate told the bodyguard, "Take it."

Removes Film
The bodyguard pulled the camera from the shoulder of cameraman Charlie Jones and removed the exposed film, the network said in a news report from Eutaw by Sam Donaldson. Wallace was not reached immediately for comment.

Donaldson's report: "American independent party presidential candidate George Wallace ordered his personal bodyguards to seize and destroy

By BEVERLY R. YOUNG
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — If the Senate goes along with President Johnson's, Abe Fortas will be known by the dignified title of Mr. Chief Justice. But when he was a young man working his way through school by playing the violin at dances his friend called him "Fiddlin' Abe."

Young Fortas led his own band, The Blue Melody Boys, while attending Memphis' South Side High School and Southwestern College. He got $8 a job, a large sum for the son of a Jewish immigrant who worked variously as a jeweler, furniture dealer and cabinet maker.

Johnson Wednesday named Fortas to be chief justice in place of retiring Earl Warren. Fortas was born in Memphis June 19, 1910, the youngest of five children of Woolfe and Rachel Berzansky Fortas, who had come to the United States from Southampton, England.

Young Abe was an excellent student. His late brother, Meyer, reminiscing several years ago, recalled his capacity for concentration.

Decided on Law
"He studied by the radio. He would turn on the radio and sit close to it. He seemed to concentrate better that way. I couldn't have studied with all that sound. It was fascinating to see."

It was at Southwestern, a small Presbyterian college which he attended on a scholarship, that Fortas decided to pursue law as a career instead of music.

After graduation, he was offered law scholarships to Harvard and Yale. He chose Yale because it paid $50 a month more.

He completed law school in 1933 and remained on at Yale as an assistant professor of law. But Fortas spent much of his time commuting between Yale and Washington, D.C., where he got his political indoctrination as assistant chief of the legal division of the Agricultural Administration. After a year in that job, he switched to the Securities and Exchange Commission as a legal adviser.

He left Yale in 1937 to devote full time to his Washington career and by 1942 had become undersecretary of Interior.

Fortas resigned four years later to help found what is now one of Washington's top law firms, Arnold, Fortas & Porter. He reportedly was making $160,000 a year when he was named an associate justice of the Supreme Court by President Johnson in 1965.

Fortas is one of President Johnson's oldest confidants and advisers, and in some respects perhaps his closest.

Helped Johnson
His professional association with Johnson dates back to 1948 when he went to the Supreme Court with an appeal that helped put the future president into the Senate.

Johnson had won a Texas primary by only 87 votes and a federal judge had ordered his name off the general election ballot until the outcome could be investigated.

Fortas took the issue to Justice Hugo L. Black who set aside the order. Johnson's name went on the ballot and he won the election.

Perhaps Fortas' most celebrated case before the high court was his appeal, as a court-appointed lawyer, on behalf of Clarence Gideon, a penniless Florida man sentenced to five years for breaking into a pool hall with intent to steal.

Fortas contended Gideon should have had a court-appointed lawyer at trial, and the resulting ruling, overturning a 1940 decision, made legal history.

On the Supreme Court Fortas quickly fit into the liberal majority that has dominated court action under Warren. Others in that group have been justices William J. Brennan Jr., William O. Douglas, and much of the time, Black.

Fortas was on the winning side in rulings that upheld the 1956 federal voting rights law, outlawed payment of a poll tax as a condition for voting in state and local elections, and threw out the requirement for registration of Communist Party members with the government.

Wet and Wild....All Over the Place

RAIN, RAIN and More Rain That's the only fitting way to describe the weather in the Fox Valley during recent days. Excess water is causing problems everywhere. Typical of the troubles faced by farmers because of the recent downpours is a farm with flooded fields on State 156 between Nichols and Clintonville, top. But cities have their problems, too. An employee in the Department of Public Works office on the second floor of the Appleton City Hall uses a bucket to catch water from a leak in the roof, left, second from top. Pumps on Elizabeth Street in Seymour pour water into Little Henry Creek, right, second from top. Reid Municipal Golf Course is rather unplayable, second from bottom, while the backyard of the Steve Meidam residence, 1516 N. Meade St., resembles a small lake. And it kept on raining this morning.
